

Record $20 Million

For County Welfare Tab

Is Expected in '75

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Ulster County Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer predicts that the county's welfare budget will soar from $14.8 million to a high of $20 million in 1975.

Not only is the future bleak but so is the present for it is already obvious that the funds budgeted for this year are fast running out, according to Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist. 5), chairman of the Social Services Committee.

Welfare roll increases and inflation are taking their toll as is evidenced in the dwindling bank balances of the aid to dependent children account, where there is only $979,000 left to take care of the last four months of the year. This is perilously low when one takes into consideration that $427,968 was expended for ADC in the month of August alone.

The same is true of the Home Relief account which has a balance of $38,000 to last through the end of the year. The August expenditure for Home Relief as $28,000.

Kramer, who is presently working on a preliminary budget for 1975, said the budget increases are due mainly to inflation which has produced an increase in Medicaid and in the Aid to Dependent Children Program. He told of the state mandating an 11.8 per cent increase in all ADC benefits, effective July 1. In addition, rental and fuel costs have increased for welfare clients.

The Social Services Department also disburses money or aid to the blind and disabled, old age assistance and child welfare. All those accounts are thinning out also.

Where will the extra needed money come from? Fortunately, Ulster County has a fair-sized contingency account but there is a question of how much will be left when Dec. 31 rolls around.

Also, as Kramer points out, the total cost of welfare here is 70 to 75 per cent reimbursable by the state therefore the county's share of the projected $20 million will be 25 to 30 per cent of whatever the budget turns out to be.

Gardner said the Social Services Committee is attempting to cope with the situation as best it can. For instance able bodied persons on welfare will be enlisted to work in the federal manpower program here. Also, Thursday night the Ulster County Legislature hired an accounting firm for $13,500 in hopes of securing more than $50,000 in government reimbursements for services performed by other county departments who are of assistance to the Social Services Department Data Processing and the Health Department are two such departments performing duties for the Welfare Department.

Cost allocation to other departments can be federally reimbursed if it is properly researched and documented, Gardner said. The firm of Peat, Merwick and Mitchell will be hired to develop the necessary data to file retro-active reimbursement claims.

It was pointed out that Sullivan, Orange and Dutchess counties, through the hiring of accounting firms, have claimed reimbursements retroactive to 1970 with Sullivan claiming $212,000, Orange $387,000 and Dutchess $380,000.

Kramer also pointed out that his department is trying to beef up the work relief program and is continuing with its vocational rehabilitation program. His department was also responsible for the cost allocation proposal. "We hope that all these things put together will realize some benefit to the taxpayers eventually," he said.

30 Days for Draft Evaders to Appeal Sentences

Furloughs for Prisoners

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Ford's clemency program has temporarily freed most of the 95 Vietnam-era draft evaders in federal prisons, but some may be back.

To some, Ford's offer to do alternative service in lieu of jail was no different than what they had refused to do before they were imprisoned. They said they owed the nation no service for refusing to fight in what they called an immoral war.

Steve Bezich of Chicago was one. He refused to leave the federal reformatory at El Reno, Okla., saying he wouldn't accept anything short of complete amnesty.

Several others who did leave said they would return, rather than accept alternative service. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe had ordered the imprisoned draft evaders released late Tuesday on 30-day furloughs to give them time to appeal their sentences to a newly created clemency board.

Presumably that board might rule that some inmates must spend time doing public service work in lieu of completing their sentences.

The board was set up by President Ford after he decided to offer amnesty to draft evaders and deserters — both those in jail and those in exile or hiding — if they agreed to alternative service.

Early reports indicated the offer wasn't faring much better with those who had avoided prison by leaving the country.

Only one draft evader was known to have turned himself in Tuesday.

The Justice Department said a telephone center set up to handle inquiries from draft resisters, deserters and others had received calls from 42 evaders, 21 deserters and 50 other interested persons.

Saxbe's directive had set prison officials in 30 federal institutions to work to determine which inmates were serving only draft evasion sentences. A spokesman said preliminary reports indicated as many as one-fourth of the imprisoned draft evaders might be ineligible for the furloughs because of other charges pending against them.

See editorial on page 6.

The furloughs allow the inmates to return home and go about their business freely for 30 days and prison officials said all possible efforts were made to free all those affected by Tuesday night.

The Bureau of Prisons said the clemency board is expected to complete action on the inmates' cases within 30 days but if it takes longer, extensions could be added.

Meanwhile defense officials acknowledge that President Ford's conditional amnesty plan leaves a loophole through which returning Vietnam-era deserters could escape alternate public service.

They concede it would be possible for such deserters to get off with no greater price than an undesirable discharge.

The same loophole does not exist for draft evaders, who would remain subject to prosecution under federal civilian law if they reneged on pledges to perform alternate service. It is unclear whether Pentagon lawyers were aware of the escape hatch for deserters, or whether it was overlooked in their haste to meet Ford's requirement for a program designed to provide an opportunity for "earned re-entry."

The problem arises because returning deserters would be beyond the reach of military law once discharged. And lawyers say they know of no federal civil law the deserters would violate if they then either failed to report for alternate service or left their assigned jobs before their time was up.

Deserters Might Use 15-Day Free Pass Provision

TORONTO (AP) — Draft evaders and deserters living in Canada say President Ford's clemency program contains a provision that gives them, in effect, a 15-day free pass to visit the United States.

Attorney John Liss, who represents many U.S. military and draft exiles, says it is possible for Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters to report at the border, enter the United States and visit their homes, then return to Canada before the end of the 15 days Ford is giving them to report to authorities.

A spokesman for the FBI in Washington concedes the possibility exists, and that it is possible for draft dodgers and deserters who do not report at the border to visit even longer.

However, Liss, a 27-year-old draft evader from New York who has become a Canadian citizen, said in an interview on Tuesday that draft evaders and deserters still run a risk in making such a visit.

And the staff at AMEX-Canada, a magazine published here by U.S. exiles, counseled draft resisters and deserters who asked about Ford's program not to take the risk. No one was sure how many would.

Ford announced on Monday that he would grant clemency to all Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters who agreed to work at public service jobs "promoting the national health, safety or interest" upon their return to the United States. The clemency offer does not extend to those facing crimes other than simple desertion or draft-dodging.

Under the clemency program, the exiles would first be required to report to border stations.

There they will be taken out of traffic or pedestrian lanes and into what the Customs Service calls its "secondary phase" inspection facilities, where computer terminals are linked to the National Crime Information Center.

Their names will be fed into crime center computers, and they will be told whether warrants have been issued for their arrest. But a Customs spokesman in Washington said they will not be arrested.

Instead, each will be given a copy of Ford's clemency proclamation to read and will be instructed to report within 15 days to the U.S. attorney in the district where his warrant was issued, or to his branch of service.

The FBI spokesman said the crime center computers will note next to the exile's name that he has been located and the date. That information will be passed to all appropriate authorities, including U.S. attorneys and the military service, the spokesman said.

But he said the warrants would not be executed during the 15 days.

Asked what there would be to stop a draft dodger or deserter from visiting home and returning to Canada on the 14th day, the FBI spokesman replied: "Nothing. Not a thing, as far as I know."

Liss cautioned exiles against two dangers:

"First, if you even start looking the wrong way by indicating you're not going to follow through with the program at the end of the 15 days, you could be arrested, maybe when you were booking a flight back to Canada ... or at any time on the drive north."

"And second, I'm worried if people go down in the near future before we get a clarification of what it would do to either their Canadian citizenship or landed immigration status."

Meanwhile, there were only a smattering of calls from draft evaders and military deserters of the Vietnam War in the first 24 hours after President Ford offered them conditional amnesty.

The military services said Tuesday they got about 40 calls from deserters or friends and relatives asking for more information on amnesty. The Justice Department reported 63 calls from resisters and deserters. But there was no rush by an estimated 4,000 fugitives to turn themselves in.

FURLOUGHED—Three inmates of the El Reno Federal Reformatory in Oklahoma, serving a sentence for violation of the Military Selective Service Act were released at 3:00 p.m. Tuesday on a 30 day furlough to their homes to enable them to make application to the Executive Clemency Board under President Ford's amnesty plan. They are (left to right): John Barker, 22, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. John Worley, 21, of Sulphur, Oklahoma, and Valentine Delpino, 24, of El Paso, Texas. A fourth inmate, Steve Bezich, of Chicago, Illinois said he would not accept a conditional release and would go out only if there were no conditions. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

'Ford's Plan May Create Renewed Conflicts'...Fish

By JON POWERS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Although President Gerald R. Ford's offer of conditional amnesty for Vietnam era draft evaders was intended, in part, to "heal the scars of divisiveness" in this country, it may only serve to create renewed conflicts between those who served and those who refused, according to Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.

While he didn't actually criticize the President's proposal, the Millbrook Republican expressed some reservations about the effectiveness of the amnesty plan.

"It appears to be a conditional parole rather than a conditional amnesty," Fish told the Freeman. "I'm not sure that many draft evaders will be coming home because of it."

Noting that many draft evaders who have surrendered to authorities in recent years have received suspended sentences from lenient judges, Fish said that the conditions laid down in the President's amnesty proposal "appear to be more stringent than what the draft evaders have received from the courts."

"It is a tough dose that the President is offering," added Fish.

The Republican Congressman conceded, however, that he doesn't have an alternative amnesty plan, suggesting that it would have been improper for him to offer his own thoughts on the amnesty issue while the President weighed in his own mind the merits of the case.

"I think the President was sincere in striving for a mood of reconciliation," said Fish, "but I'm not sure that this plan will reconcile anything. I don't think it will be accepted either by a majority of the draft evaders, who left the United States for what they believed was a moral issue, or the veterans who did respond and who fought in the war."

Although Fish may have reservations about the effectiveness of the President's amnesty offer, Congressman Howard W. Robison (R-Canada), judging from a statement released from his office Tuesday, thinks the new amnesty plan is just fine.

In fact, said Robison, the conditions of the amnesty plan "reflect the kind of principals ... that I proposed earlier this year."

The 27th District Republican, who is retiring at the end of the current term of Congress, said he believes the amnesty offer "will make it less difficult for those young men to return than had been anticipated."

"It is my earnest and sincere hope that this action by the President can help close the pages of a dark chapter in American history," said Robison, as well as allow "those who are now in hiding, or in other countries, to rejoin the mainstream of our society."

Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-Middletown) could not be reached for reaction to the amnesty proposal.

Nixon to Enter Hospital Within a Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former President Richard M.

Nixon will probably enter a hospital within a week, according to his daughter. A team of medical specialists was reported on standby at the Camp Pendleton naval hospital near San Clemente, Calif., home of Julie Nixon Eisenhower said on Tuesday that the treatment Nixon received at home for the blood clots in his leg veins has improved his phlebitis and that he will enter the hospital "to get something checked."

She said her mother had indicated that the former president was "irritable" because of the illness, but she labeled as "crazy" reports that his mind was wandering or that he was testily, dangerously depressed about having to resign office last month.

"Of course, he's not on top of the world," Mrs. Eisenhower said after taping several segments of the NBC-TV "Not for Women Only" program in New York.

In other developments involving the former president: —Attorneys Herbert J. Miller Jr. and Raymond G. Larroca announced on Tuesday that they have filed a motion in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles to quash a subpoena requiring Nixon to testify in a civil suit next week. The motion, scheduled for a hearing on Monday, "for a reasonable length of time."

—The California Supreme Court took under advisement

House Committee slashes $452 thousand from President Ford's $850 thousand request for Nixon's return to private life. Story page 3.

Charlotte, N.C., contends that White House aides and local officials illegally prevented them from attending a 1971 rally honoring the Rev. Billy Graham in Charlotte. Nixon spoke at the event, and he has been ordered to testify in the suit by entering a deposition in Santa Ana, Calif., on Sept. 24. An attorney for the group agreed to a delay for a reasonable length of time.

—The California Supreme Court took under advisement

Nixon's formal resignation from the California bar. The State Bar Board of Governors recommended that the resignation be accepted without prejudice to further disciplinary proceedings against Nixon if he should seek reinstatement.

The letter of resignation received by the court on Tuesday was Nixon's second attempt to resign from the state bar. A previous letter was rejected because it failed to acknowledge that a disciplinary matter was pending against Nixon.

If the court were to reject the resignation, it would leave the former president open to possible disbarment.

Meanwhile, Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski is testing the limits of an agreement for delivery of White House tapes and documents to Nixon by seeking some of them for Watergate prosecutions.

A list of the requested documents and tapes was to be delivered late Tuesday or early today to President Ford's counsel, Philip Buchen, according to sources in the prosecutor's office.

The request marks the first time since the tapes agreement with Nixon was announced Sept. 8 that Jaworski has sought some of the same materials scheduled to be sent for safekeeping near Nixon's estate.

At the same time a White House spokesman indicated that Jaworski is seeking a com-

Court Ruling Favors Watchtower Farms

By WADE BURKHART

TOWN OF SHAWANGUNK
As the Shawangunk Homeowners Association prepares to protest at the sprawling Watchtower Farms complex against its tax exempt status, a State Supreme Court judge has ruled that the activities conducted at the farm "must be termed religious in nature," and the complex entitled to its tax exemption.

The Wallkill Central School District encompasses about 1,100 of the about 1,500 acres owned by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society in the Towns of Shawangunk and Gardiner. It sought to tax the land, after passing a resolution to allow it in a special meeting, for the 1973-74 school year.

The Watchtower Society, the governing agency in the U.S. of the Jehovah's Witnesses, took the school district to court, with the case heard in a special term Dec. 7, 1973 before Justice DeForest Pitt, Pitt, in a ruling dated July 18, said Watchtower's activities were "religious" in nature and the land tax exempt, and in an order dated Aug. 30 told the school district to take the land off the tax rolls, not put it on again, and refund whatever taxes were paid on the land, with interest.

Both the ruling and the order were filed earlier this month in the Ulster County Clerk's Office.

In actuality, Watchtower did not pay the taxes on the land the school district was seeking. After the taxes were not paid, Ulster County reimbursed the school district for the unpaid taxes, as state law mandates. The county would then have put the taxes on the county tax bill, and proceeded against Watchtower if they weren't paid, had not Pitt's order intervened. The Wallkill district will now have to give the money, more than $28,000, back to the county.

Leonard Gunsch, Wallkill Central School District superintendent, said Tuesday he did not think the district was going to appeal Pitt's ruling, and said he knew of no plans by the board of education to try other ways to get Watchtower tax money.

The district sought to prove before Pitt that the activities conducted at Watchtower were for "missionary and bible tract purposes," something it tried to prove were distinct from strictly religious purposes.

Grant Suiter, the secretary and treasurer of the Watchtower Society, stated in an affidavit submitted in the case that the printing done at the complex was only religious materials used by the Jehovah's Witnesses, all personnel there were ordained ministers, and the food raised on the farms was not sold to the public or otherwise commercially disposed of.

The Shawangunk Homeowners Association is planning a protest at Watchtower for Saturday, Oct. 5. Watchtower has been in Shawangunk since 1963, and comment.

Paltz Planners List Main Changes

NEW PALTZ requirement of a public hearing for the preliminary subdivision, rather than for the final subdivision, the requirement that all data required for final approval be submitted when preliminary approval is requested, and the power of the planning board to waive a public hearing on final approval if it determines that the final form of the subdivision is not too different from its preliminary form.

The definition of a subdivision goes back to one which used to be in the zoning laws of New Paltz, Mesches said, but was dropped.

The change in definition is to define a subdivision as having two or more lots, rather than the present three or more lots. Mesches said there had been problems with land holders selling off a lot a year, and eventually leaving property landlocked, and of commercial properties being divided with what the planning board feels were results detrimental to the town, with the planning board being powerless to do anything about it.

A big problem with defining subdivision to be as small as two lots is the difficulties it poses for the "Dad gives son a piece of land" type of situation. Mesches said the planning board recognized this problem, and has included a "minor subdivision" definition in the new regulations.

If both parcels in a two-lot subdivision meet certain basic criteria, like road frontage for both of them, minimum lot size, and no adverse effect on the development of adjoining or remaining parcels, the planning board has the option of declaring the subdivision a "minor subdivision."

If the planning board does that, only a sketch plan survey is required, and the rest of the procedure generally waived. "It wouldn't be our intention to add costs to the little guy," said Mesches.

The third major change is the setting of subdivision fees. There are none presently, with the exception of a filing fee, according to Mesches. The revised regulations would call for a minimum fee of $50 per subdivision, with an additional $10 per additional lot for subdivisions over five lots. Mesches said it costs a lot for subdivision review by the building inspector and planning board consultant, and the town ought to be reimbursed for the costs.

He indicated that even the new fees probably would not pay the whole bill.

The Ulster County Planning Board whose model regulations were closely followed in the New Paltz revision, must review the revised regulations before final action by the town board.

Rocky Revising His Financial Figures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller is drawing up new figures that show he is worth substantially more than the $33 million figure he originally filed with congressional committees.

Rockefeller will make the new data public when confirmation hearings on his nomination open before the Senate Rules Committee Monday.

The new figures, however, are not expected to reveal the full extent of the Rockefeller family fortune, which was conservatively estimated several years ago at more than $1 billion.

Rockefeller discussed the financial figures with both Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Hugh Scott this week.

"He has voluntarily decided to revise the figures," Scott said.

Mansfield made no public statement, but a source reported that he questioned Rockefeller about the $33 million figure.

"Well, that didn't include my trusts; that's another area," Rockefeller was quoted as telling Mansfield.

Scott in a Senate speech accused the House of "sloth, inactivity or apathy" for delaying its action on Rockefeller until after election day. He suggested the delay was to prevent Rockefeller from campaigning for Republicans.

But Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., a ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee, said the time was needed for some 20 auditors to investigate the Rockefeller finances.

Rockefeller's press secretary, Hugh Morrow, said the initial financial figures given the two committees were hastily drawn up and often reflected the million dollar purchase price rather than current value of a number of items.

"We had a very difficult time," he said. "When it comes to stocks and bonds, you can receive the interest, which was reported."

Rockefeller filed a separate statement on that trust, along Rockefeller collection evaluation with two he has set up for his wife, Happy. The amounts of

One major item that Rockefeller did not list in the $33 million figure was a $100 million trust left him by his father, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Under the reported terms of the trust, Rockefeller can never touch the principal, but does receive the interest, which was $12.5 million since he had promised to give half of it away. It was reported that Rockefeller collection evaluation was based to some extent on purchase prices several years old instead of current market value.

The former governor listed his real estate holdings at $16 million, but again cut the figure in half to reflect pledges he has made effective upon his death. The real estate also was believed in some cases to have been valued by its purchase price.

Congressional investigators said that the Rockefeller finance statements were only the "tip of the iceberg" of the family fortune.

They noted, for instance, that Rockefeller listed personal assets of $2 million in cars, boats, airplanes and other transportation vehicles. But the family-owned jet that Rockefeller has access to whenever he wants is valued alone at $4.5 million.

Nixon Appropriations Slashed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An angry House appropriations subcommittee has slashed $452,000 from President Ford's request for $850,000 to finance former President Richard Nixon's return to private life.

The 13-member panel voted 7-6 Tuesday to cut the total supplemental appropriations request to $398,000 after rejecting attempts to reduce the sum to a flat $200,000. Some subcommittee members, including Rep. Tom Bevil, D-Ala., wanted to deny all funds for Nixon except his $60,000 annual presidential pension.

Chairman Tom Steed, D-Okl., said opposition to the Nixon funds was so intense within the subcommittee, "I was surprised I got as much out of the committee as I did." He said the six members who voted against the final figure wanted to reduce it further.

Ford had sought $450,000 under a presidential transition law to provide Nixon with staff assistance to help in declassifying and sorting his presidential papers and answer a mountain of mail that has come in since his resignation.

An additional $400,000 was sought under the Former Presidents law to establish and staff a full time office and provide Nixon his pension.

The biggest single sum build an elaborate vault and knocked out of the request was $110,000 the General Services Administration said it needed to build a facility near his San Clemente home.

'It's Not True' . . . Haig

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig Jr. have denied a published report that Haig persuaded Ford to grant a pardon to Richard M. Nixon.

"It's all wrong . . . it's just not true," Haig said Tuesday of a New York Times article quoting an unidentified source as saying Haig was "primarily responsible" for the Nixon pardon.

The story quoted the source as saying Haig warned Ford that unless he moved quickly in granting an unconditional pardon, it might be too late to avert "a possible personal and national tragedy" of Nixon's complete physical and mental collapse.

Acting White House press secretary John W. Hushen said he talked with Ford about the report and quoted the President as saying, "Al Haig never discussed with me the mental or physical condition of former President Nixon prior to my decision to grant the pardon."

Asked if Haig had urged Ford to grant the pardon, Hushen said, "No. Al Haig's role is described to me . . . as basically neutral. He was certainly in favor of the pardon but he did not lobby for it."

Haig, a four-star general, is leaving his White House post to return to active duty and to accept Ford's appointment as U.S. commander and supreme allied commander in Europe.

Boston Violence Eases, Teachers Strikes Continue

By United Press International

The violence over school busing in Boston and controversial textbooks in Charleston, W.Va., has eased, but teachers strikes elsewhere have delayed the start of school for thousands of students.

Attendance inched upward Tuesday and only a few minor incidents of violence were reported in Boston on the fourth day of classes under a court-ordered busing program to integrate the city's schools.

Attendance increased to 72.6 per cent, but thousands of students still remained away from their classrooms.

An adult riding in a car was slightly injured in a stoning incident in south Boston. In a second incident at Hyde Park School, five whites threw rocks at 22 black students boarding a bus to go home. There were no injuries and no arrests.

Kanawha County, W. Va., public schools reopened Tuesday after a violent protest over textbooks considered obscene by some parents. A bomb threat forced a temporary suspension of classes at one school, and bomb threats occurred at two other schools. No bombs were found.

Pickets in adjoining Fayette County prevented school buses from running, driving attendance down, and in adjacent Boone County schools were closed as a precautionary measure.

A suit filed in federal court seeks to prevent use of the controversial textbooks.

In Federal Way, Wash., teachers pulled down picket lines at schools for Tuesday's Washington primary election. Hundreds of parents in the strike-bound city have demanded that the school board negotiate in good faith with the 600 striking teachers, who are seeking a 10.5 per cent pay hike.

Schools remained closed in Racine, Wis., today after one judge ordered them opened and another judge later countermanded the order.

Michigan and Pennsylvania also were plagued by teachers' strikes. Ten school districts in each state were the targets of continuing strikes.

Hurricane Fifi Heads Towards Honduras Coast

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Fifi, sixth tropical storm of the season, aimed its 125 mile an hour wind gusts at the northeast tip of Honduras today and forecasters said the winds could be stronger by the time the storm touches land.

The national Hurricane Center in Miami also warned the 100 residents of Swan Island to continue their hurricane precautions.

At midnight Fifi was about 100 miles off the northeast tip of Honduras near 16.1 degrees north latitude and 82.0 degrees west longitude. It slowed its forward movement Tuesday night but was expected to resume moving west-southwest at 10 miles an hour.

Up to 10 inches of rain was expected to accompany the hurricane, raising a threat of flash floods along the Honduras shore, rimmed by 6,000 foot mountain peaks.

Tides as much as 10 feet above normal were expected along the Honduras coast just ahead of the center of the hurricane.

The Hurricane center said that Fifi's west-southwest course would take its center across the coast of Honduras in the Laguna Caratasca-Cape Caramon area.

"Preparations should be rushed to completion for increasing winds which may reach 100 miles an hour by noon Wednesday over extreme northeast Honduras and spread westward along the remaining north coast during the afternoon and evening," the Weather bulletin said.

The National Hurricane Center bulletin warned small craft and fishing boats to seek safe harbors in Honduras, northeast Nicaragua, Swan Island, and from Guatemala northward to Mexico's Yucatan peninsula.

Forecaster Paul Hebert said at midnight the hurricane had sustained winds of 100 miles an hour and gusts to 125 miles an hour.

"It appears to be still gaining strength and there is no reason why that should not continue until it reaches land," Hebert said.

Amnesty Plan . . . The Procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once a deserter takes the first step toward accepting President Ford's conditional amnesty offer, there is no turning back.

He is not free to negotiate, for example, how long he will work in a public service job under the supervision of his Selective Service board.

The deserter or evader can cite reasons why he should serve fewer than the 24-month maximum length of service. But if he is unhappy with the time decided on by the local U.S. attorney or his former military service, there is no established route of appeal, and refusal to serve probably would result in prosecution for the original offense.

Officials say an evader or deserter living in Canada should call or write before reporting to a U.S. attorney or his former military service. They caution that some men — no one is sure how many — might be ineligible for the program.

Instead of starting a public service job, these men might find themselves under arrest, charged outside the Aug. 4, 1964, to March 28, 1973, period covered by the program. Others may be accused of crimes in addition to draft evasion or desertion.

The 4,500 evaders and deserters believed to be living in Canada have 15 days from the date they re-enter the United States until they report to a military installation (for deserters) or the U.S. attorney in the area where their draft board was located (for evaders).

The informal controls along the U.S.-Canadian border make it likely some returnees will come back without checking at U.S. Customs stations, all of which have had computerized lists of evaders and deserters since 1970.

Those who do report at the border will be checked off and handed a copy of Ford's amnesty proclamation, but in no way followed, officials say.

Once a deserter has completed his alternative service, he receives a new "clemency discharge" in place of the undesirable discharge.

Although given a clear military record, he receives no veterans benefits. His discharge carries no code identifying him as a deserter, but the Veterans Administration receives a list of persons discharged "for willful and persistent unauthorized absence."

A major objection among some evaders and deserters to amnesty proposals suggested to Ford was a requirement for some statement of allegiance or admission of guilt.

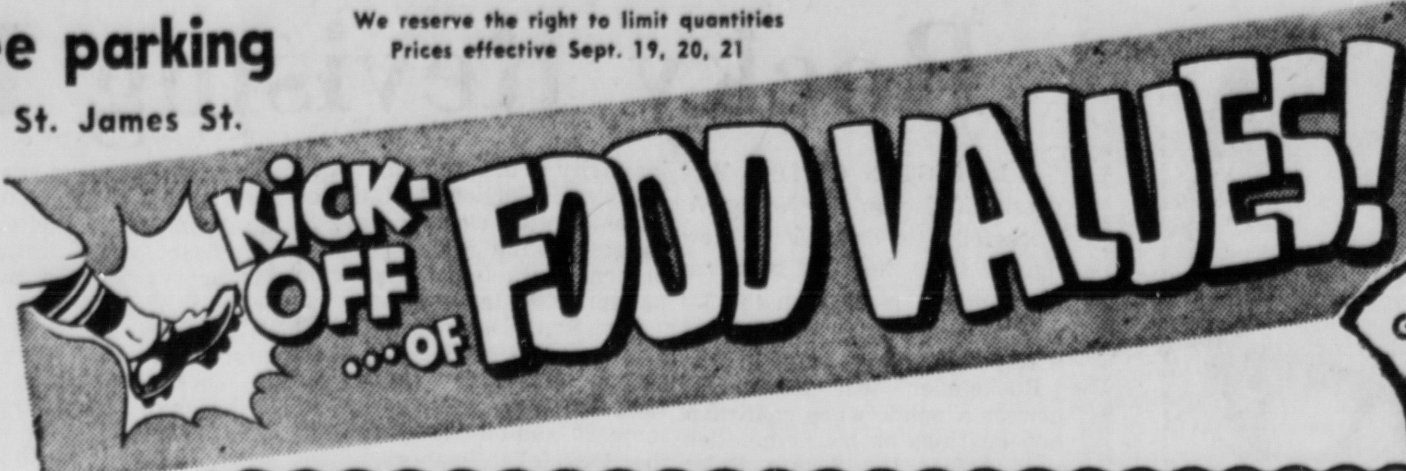

In the program announced Monday, only deserters must sign a statement which declares their allegiance and includes a promise to "defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic." There is no mention of their crime or Vietnam.

Officials said evaders' participation in the public service program will be tantamount to a statement of allegiance to the United States.

War Resisters Give Views

By United Press International
Scores of America's expatriate draft evaders and military deserters attacked President Ford's conditional amnesty plan today as "typical hypocrisy" and said most of the 28,000 war resisters in exile would refuse to go back home.

War resisters, questioned in Canada and Sweden, called the proposal a "gross miscarriage of justice" in view of the full pardon given former President Richard M. Nixon.

In Stockholm, Mike Powers, 24, of New York, said, "I don't think anyone will accept this." In Toronto, Jack Colhoun, 29, of Madison, Wis., said, "It's typical hypocrisy on the part of Ford."

Desmond Carragher, 30, a spokesman for the American Exile Project in Sweden, said Ford proposed "punishment" by offering amnesty in return for two years of public service and a new oath of allegiance.

"To accept it must be an admission of guilt," the Eugene Ore., exile said. "I feel that Ford's proposal would do more to split the country than to reunite it. I doubt seriously if many exiles will return after this."

John Picciano, 26, of Lodi, N.J., an army deserter who came to Sweden seven years ago, said, "This offer is much worse than most people thought it would be. I think it is absurd. I won't go back on my principles," said Larry Martin, 28, of San Diego, coordinator of the Vancouver Committee to Aid American War Objectors. Steve Grossman, 28, a Chicago draft evader living in Toronto, said, "I can't go back under those terms."

"It's very important that the lessons of resistance to the Vietnam War be learned and that we be vindicated," he said. "We owe this much to our people and our time."

Gerry Condon, a 26-year old former Green Beret from San Mateo, Calif., said in Toronto there was simply "no way" he would return under Ford's proposal.

"Although I'd like to get back to see people, there is, at present anyway, more value in staying here and fighting for unconditional amnesty," he said.

Founder's Day . . . Service Clubs Honored

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON — The four local service clubs that conceived what has since become the United Way of Ulster County were honored for their "combined vision and tireless devotion" at a Founder's Day luncheon Tuesday at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Cited Tuesday were the Lions Club, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club and the Jaycees, all of which were instrumental in forming the original Kingston Community Chest in 1954. The four representatives of those service clubs — William R. Stall, N. Jansen Fowler, Larry V. Bogart and Robert S. Stedje — who met in the Gen. Sharpe Room at the Gov. Clinton 20 years ago to lay the foundation for the original Community Chest, were also honored.

The 20th United Way campaign will be officially launched on Monday. Although the campaign goal has not yet been established, United Way officials are urging community-wide support and participation so that services offered by the 17 member agencies can continue to expand.

"Without the participation of the service clubs and the community as a whole," United Way President William Sloane told the gathering Tuesday, "the viability of United Way as a community and human service organization would be in doubt."

Noting that about 90 per cent of the service club members in attendance Tuesday had participated in previous United Way campaigns, Sloane said, "If we had 90 per cent participation in United Way throughout the community, Mark (Schigan, this year's campaign director) wouldn't have a thing to do."

Sloane urged that the service clubs, and their members, "continue to expand your support of United Way." He said that suggestions that government fund the various United Way agencies through tax dollars is "not the answer." Added Sloane, "The community must be willing to help our less fortunate neighbors."

Clifford A. Henze read the names of past United Way presidents and campaign chairmen who have served in the 20 years since 1954. Past presidents who attended Tuesday's luncheon — including N. Jansen Fowler (1956), Henry Haltermann (1960-1961), William Stall (1964), Charles Raible (1967-68), Robert Brown (1970) and Anthony Triulzi (1971), as well as 1972's campaign chairman, Al Brocco — were presented with tokens of United Way's appreciation.

Stall, president of the Kingston Lions Club when that initial meeting was held 20 years ago, said the decision to consolidate individual fundraising efforts into one coordinated fund drive was partially made with selfish motivations in mind. "We were being called on to collect for four or five different organizations," he commented. "It saved us all time and energy to do it all at once." Speaking of that 1954 meeting, Stall added, "I just happened to be there at the right time. It's taken a team effort to continue the growth and progress of United Way."

Fowler, who urged the community's "wholehearted support" for the upcoming United Way drive, said he hoped that "continued cooperation" by the service clubs and their members "will help to make United Way even stronger in the years to come."

"Thanks to the hard work of everyone here, United Way has been a success," said Bogart. "Let's make the next 50 years great."

Stedje lauded the Jaycees for their participation in United Way's birth and called for "full-hearted support" during the approaching campaign.

Thursday's luncheon meeting was hosted by the Lions Club.

City Dog Controversy Raging

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Tenth Ward Alderman Clifford Sinsabaugh is howling mad over the stray dog situation in his ward which led to the destruction of almost 30 fowl over the weekend but City Dog Warden Louis Turk says he's barking up the wrong tree.

Sinsabaugh blames the stray dog problem on Turk who he says is unavailable and or incompetent. Sinsabaugh wants Turk moved into city hall rather than operating from his home at 4 North Street as has been the case since Turk was hired by the city three years ago.

The incidents which ignited this latest controversy over the city's dog problems occurred in Ponckhockie over the weekend. A pack of stray dogs, numbering around ten, broke into chicken coops at 30 Willow Street and at 12 Cordts Street.

Sinsabaugh said he's especially upset over the destruction of 18 chickens and a duck at the Denters home on Cordts Street since raising them was a hobby of the Denters' 12-year-old boy. "His hobby has been annihilated by those vicious dogs," said Sinsabaugh.

Turk, replying to Sinsabaugh's attacks said, "first of all I don't work on Sundays as the dog warden. I do go out and pick up dead dogs hit by cars on weekends if I'm home and get a call to do so."

"Alderman Sinsabaugh knows this. He also knows I do not have an office at city hall or have no one to take my calls."

Turk said calls were previously taken by his wife for several years but since she was not paid by the city she has ceased taking calls. Turk is paid $6,550 a year plus $125 a month for the use of his truck.

Turk's truck is another bone of contention with Sinsabaugh who feels the city should have its own truck.

Sinsabaugh and Turk did agree on several points, however. Sinsabaugh noted the "abuse" Turk's wife took from some callers and he allowed that Turk was often sent on "wild goose chases" in response to calls.

Both agreed the city's dog ordinance wasn't enforced in the courts.

But Sinsabaugh was critical of the hours kept by Turk, claiming he was often unavailable and that "you could set your watch by his comings and goings."

Turk defends his schedule, contending what he does on his own time off the job is his business.

As for the stray dog situation in the 10th Ward, Turk doesn't see any immediate solutions. "The 10th Ward is a dumping ground for dogs," Turk contended. "People bring them down here and drop them off. Besides, the people who live in the ward don't tie up their dogs the way they're supposed to."

City officials had ordered walkie-talkie sets for the dog catcher to keep him in contact with the police but that equipment still hasn't arrived.

More immediate help in the form of an assistant dog warden is on the way. Michael Cooper begins work Monday and will work from noon to 8 p.m. Turk will continue to work from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sinsabaugh and Turk exchanged blasts in conclusion. "He's incompetent and negligent in fulfilling his duties and if the condition continues I think it's about time that somebody asks for his resignation," said Sinsabaugh.

"You can either keep on talking or you can shut up and do something to help solve the dog problem we have," Turk said.

Bell Sets Hearing

ALBANY — Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.), chairman of the State Legislature's Select Committee on Laws Affecting Local Governments, announced today that a public hearing will be held on Friday, Sept. 20 in Syracuse on the need to create a strong executive form of government for the towns of the state.

The hearing will be at 10 a.m. in the main floor conference room of the Senator Hughes State Office Building, 333 East Washington St.

Hosts of the committee will be Onondaga County Assemblymen Hyman G. Miller, Thomas J. Murphy, Leonard F. Bersani, and Rocco Pirro.

Bell said the hearing would focus on testimony on the concept of creating a chief executive to head town governments, and other reforms of the town law.

"Large towns require an executive authority which can function on a day-to-day basis, if they are to have efficient management," Bell said, "and the committee will seek the ideas of local leaders on the best way to translate this need into state law."

"Basically, the state town law has hardly been changed in 40 years," Bell pointed out. "so testimony will also be sought on ways to update the first three chapters of the town law, including the possible elimination of the classification of towns, and changes concerning town boards and officers and their functions, duties and responsibilities."

The committee will welcome testimony on any other phases of town government, the chairman said. Persons wishing to make prepared statements are requested to submit 10 copies of the committee on the day of the hearing.

Those who wish to attend and testify are requested to notify: the Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, chairman of the Select Committee on Laws Affecting Local Governments, Room 841, Legislative Office Building, Albany, New York 12224.

Hinchey Hits 'Group Label'

SAUGERTIES ways. It was Nader who first showed us that a concerned citizen could wrestle with a giant corporation and win a verdict over it. No wonder he is not loved by the powerful special interest groups in this country. But he has won the respect of millions of American working men and women."

Hinchey said.

"I have read the profile on Bell put out by the research group and I will make detailed comments on it at a later time. However, it is interesting to note that Bell did not find them associates were instrumental in ultra liberal when he granted them an interview, but only when they saw fit to criticize him. Hinchey said, "I don't think most Americans will buy his record. Bell's annoyance at some kind of radical freak, Hinchey suggested, but it does not excuse his obvious attempt to pin a stereotype label on those Nader is incorruptibly honest to and that he embodies the very who find fault with him. That, best in the middle-of-the-road may I remind him, is not in tradition so deeply rooted in our the best American tradition."

Gun Hearing Slated Sept. 30

KINGSTON — A hearing to determine whether gun charges against two reputed members of the Joseph Colombo crime family are to be dismissed in Ulster County Court will be held before Judge Raymond J. Mino on Sept. 30.

The motion to dismiss charges against Charles Panarella, 54, and Charles Pate, 33, both of Brooklyn, was lodged by their attorney, William Pretsch of Kingston, on grounds of failure to prosecute. Pretsch has also moved to suppress evidence in the case on grounds of illegal search and seizure by federal authorities.

Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt has indicated a willingness to prosecute the case, even though the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section of the Department of Justice asked him to defer prosecution and dismiss the charges. Federal authorities have themselves declined to prosecute.

Panarella and Pate were arrested April 24, 1972 near Saugerties by a task force of FBI agents and state police. They were charged with possession of two loaded handguns.

Complicating prosecution efforts was the fact that Mrs. Antoinette Pirotti, who was also arrested and who claimed possession of the guns, was killed in a car crash in 1973.

Also arrested were Alphonse "Alley Boy" Persico and Jerry Langella, suspected members of the Colombo gang. They have since disappeared. Panarella is believed to have recently assumed control of the Colombo family operations.

A Midnight Swim . . .

'One Word Led to Another'

NEW YORK (AP) — An Irishman and Englishman proved they are good swimmers by stroking across the Hudson River and working off an evening's beer. Now they have a date with a judge who they hope will prove a good sport.

The post-midnight adventure Tuesday started with some innocent boasting in McLoughlin's Cafe on Eighth Avenue by Donald O'Hara, 37, who does a bit of acting, and Peter Lloyd, a former advertising man now working on a novel. Each friend keeps a roof over his head and a head on his mug by driving taxicabs.

As O'Hara told it, "He said, 'I'm a good swimmer,' and I said, 'I'm a good swimmer.' One word led to another and so we decided to find out if we could do it."

Lloyd, who claims he made an unauthorized swim across the English Channel in 1955, first went to his nearby room and emerged with red swim trunks beneath his street clothes.

Accompanied by a friend, Lloyd and O'Hara took a cab to the Hudson at 55th Street, dropped their clothes and plunged in.

Through the dark, oily, debris-filled, gas-fumed, mile-wide Hudson the men stroked westward to Weehawken, N.J. There, O'Hara scrambled onto a pier in his birthday suit, but the piles were too greasy to Lloyd, who turned around and paddled back in the direction of Manhattan.

O'Hara scrounged some clothes and bus fare back to the city, arriving home around 6 a.m.

Meanwhile, Lloyd, using the current, came ashore again near the lower tip of Manhattan, making his total swimming distance about 5½ miles. He got a lift back to midtown just before 4 a.m., beating his friend home by two hours, had a few drinks and some breakfast and went to bed.

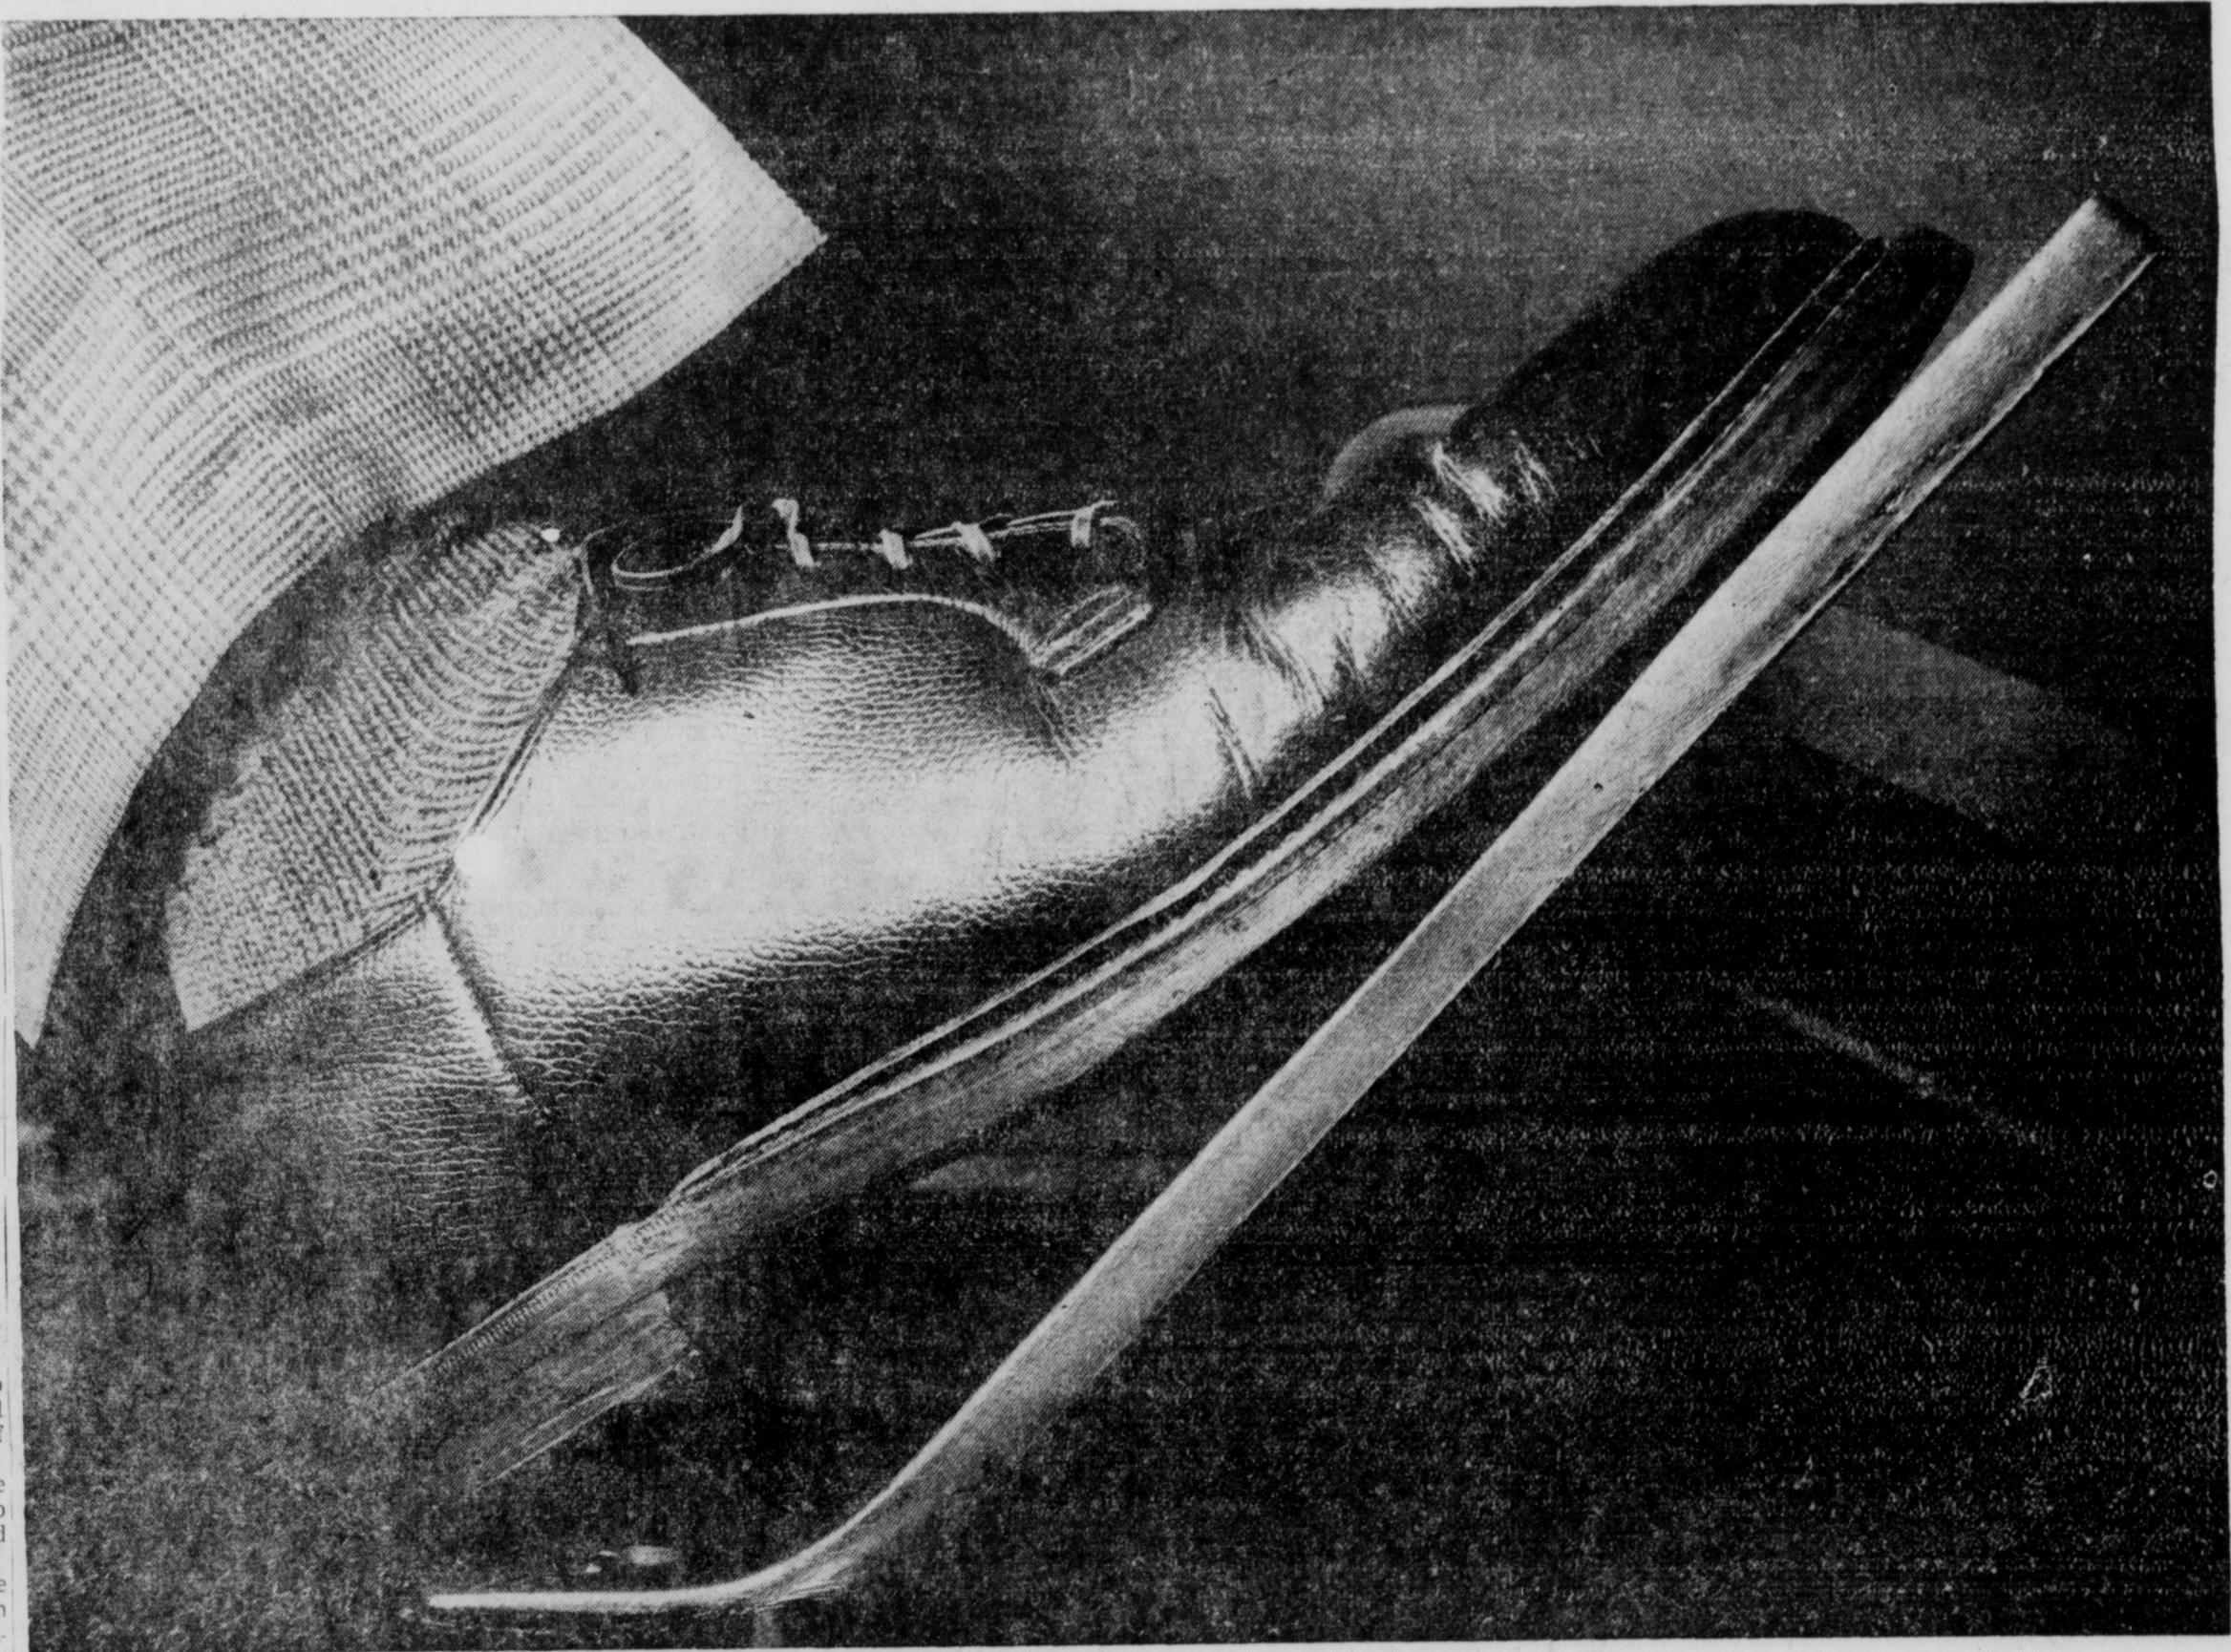

Police, however, had been informed of the stunt and were in full cry for the swimmers.

The searchers included a police helicopter, a Coast Guard launch with crew of eight, two police launches with four-man crews, an unspecified number of police officers looking along roads paralleling the river, three detectives and a sergeant and two men from the Missing Persons Bureau.

When O'Hara returned, he heard a mistaken report that a body had been recovered from the river. He went to Lloyd's room and roused the sleeping Englishman, then let police know they were okay.

For relieved police authorities, it remained only to charge the men with disorderly conduct and violation of the public health code.

They'll see a judge Oct. 10.

The larger your car, the more you have to use your head.

Lots of us want to keep on driving family-size cars. For the sake of comfort, convenience and added security. And that makes it extra important to know how to get the most out of every gallon of gas.

By now, it's no news that gas mileage is connected to the foot bone. So you should drive with a light, steady touch on the accelerator.

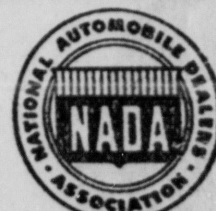

And your car will roll along easier if you keep the tires fully inflated and have the wheels aligned. That saves gas too.

It's also vital to have your car serviced and tuned regularly. Especially when it's a family-size car. If it runs a little rough, it's wasting gas.

Your new car dealer has skilled technicians who are factory trained to tune your car for maximum mileage. He's also a man who believes in your freedom of mobility. So he wants to do everything possible to avoid gas rationing.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 18, 1974

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Our own White House sources have confirmed former press secretary Jerry terHorst's report that President Ford and his staff, when they moved into the White House, found Gen. Alexander Haig functioning as the "acting president."

This characterization of Haig has been given by sources totally familiar with the White House operations during Nixon's final months.

The harassed former President had become so obsessed with his Watergate woes, they say, that he left Haig in charge of running the country.

To his credit, the able, articulate Haig held the government together as the Watergate nightmare slowly stifled the oval office. The only exception: He left foreign affairs in the hands of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

We have now established beyond doubt that Nixon spend almost his full time brooding over his Watergate predicament and scheming with a few trusted advisors how to get out of it. "He was like a man groping through a poisonous fog," said one source.

Haig handled the presidential powers, which were thrust upon him, wisely and well, our sources agree. He was acutely conscious of his military background and tried to take a civilian's view of the nation's problems, they say.

He has tried quietly to relinquish his tremendous powers, according to our sources, since President Ford took over. But the White House staff is so conditioned to taking orders from Haig that he still wields more authority inside the White House than Ford's top aides. This is one reason the President wanted to ease Haig out. But it has been a problem finding an appropriate assignment for the man who behind the scenes has been exercising the powers of the President.

Footnote: General Haig refused comment.

WATCH ON WASTE: As part of our watch on waste, we have uncovered another Ernest Fitzgerald in the National Institute of Education, which dishes out government millions for educational research.

Fitzgerald was the cost analyst who was fired by the Air Force for blowing the whistle on cost overruns.

Now the NIE has fired a $21,300-a-year contract specialist under similar circumstances. This latest Ernest Fitzgerald is Robert Drucker.

The NIE claims Drucker was fired for failing to do his job. But on close examination, it looks suspiciously like it was his zeal to save money for the taxpayers that got him in trouble.

The $8 million contract went to Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory of Portland, Ore., on a non-competitive, favored-source basis. As the negotiations reached a climax, Northwest's Dr. Larry Fish flew to Washington to complain about the low fees.

He took his complaint among others to Marc Tucker, a power at NIE, who previously had worked under Fish at Northwest. Tucker immediately ushered his former boss into Drucker's office and suggested pointedly: "It seems to me you guys should sit down together."

In the language of the Washington bureaucracy, when a bigwig says this to an underling, it means "Strike a deal." But Drucker refused to allow Northwest more than a 4 1/2 per cent fee, which still gave the lab a whopping $360,000 profit.

Drucker also held the line in other negotiations. Suddenly, his performance ratings, which had always been high, began to plummet. A few days ago, he was fired.

Drucker has also complained about a $6 million grant in 1969 to Far West Laboratory for Educational Research in San Francisco. The lab bought a huge old warehouse with the money but occupies only three floors. The other three floors are going to waste.

He has objected, too, to a $4 billion deal with Southwest Educational Development Laboratory of Austin, Texas. He questions a $230,000 developer's fee and a $300,000 prepaid rental.

Both Tucker and Fish insist that their friendship had nothing to do with the awarding of the $8 million contract. All the dealings with NIE, they swear, have been totally proper. The NIE also contends there is no evidence of wrongdoing and, in an unusual move, has taken the initiative to invite the General Accounting Office to investigate.

HUNTING GRIZZLIES: The powerful grizzly bear, which once roamed in great numbers through the West, is now threatened with extinction below the Canadian border.

This is the main conclusion of an unpublished Interior Dept. report which warns that the animal may be endangered unless immediate steps are taken to protect it.

To save the grizzly, the report urgently recommends that "sport hunting be temporarily banned" in the Yellowstone Ecosystem of Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

Conservationists estimate that only about 900 of these magnificent carnivores still survive in the lower 48 states. Yet the state of Montana, where the largest population of grizzlies exists, issued 919 permits for this year's hunting season.

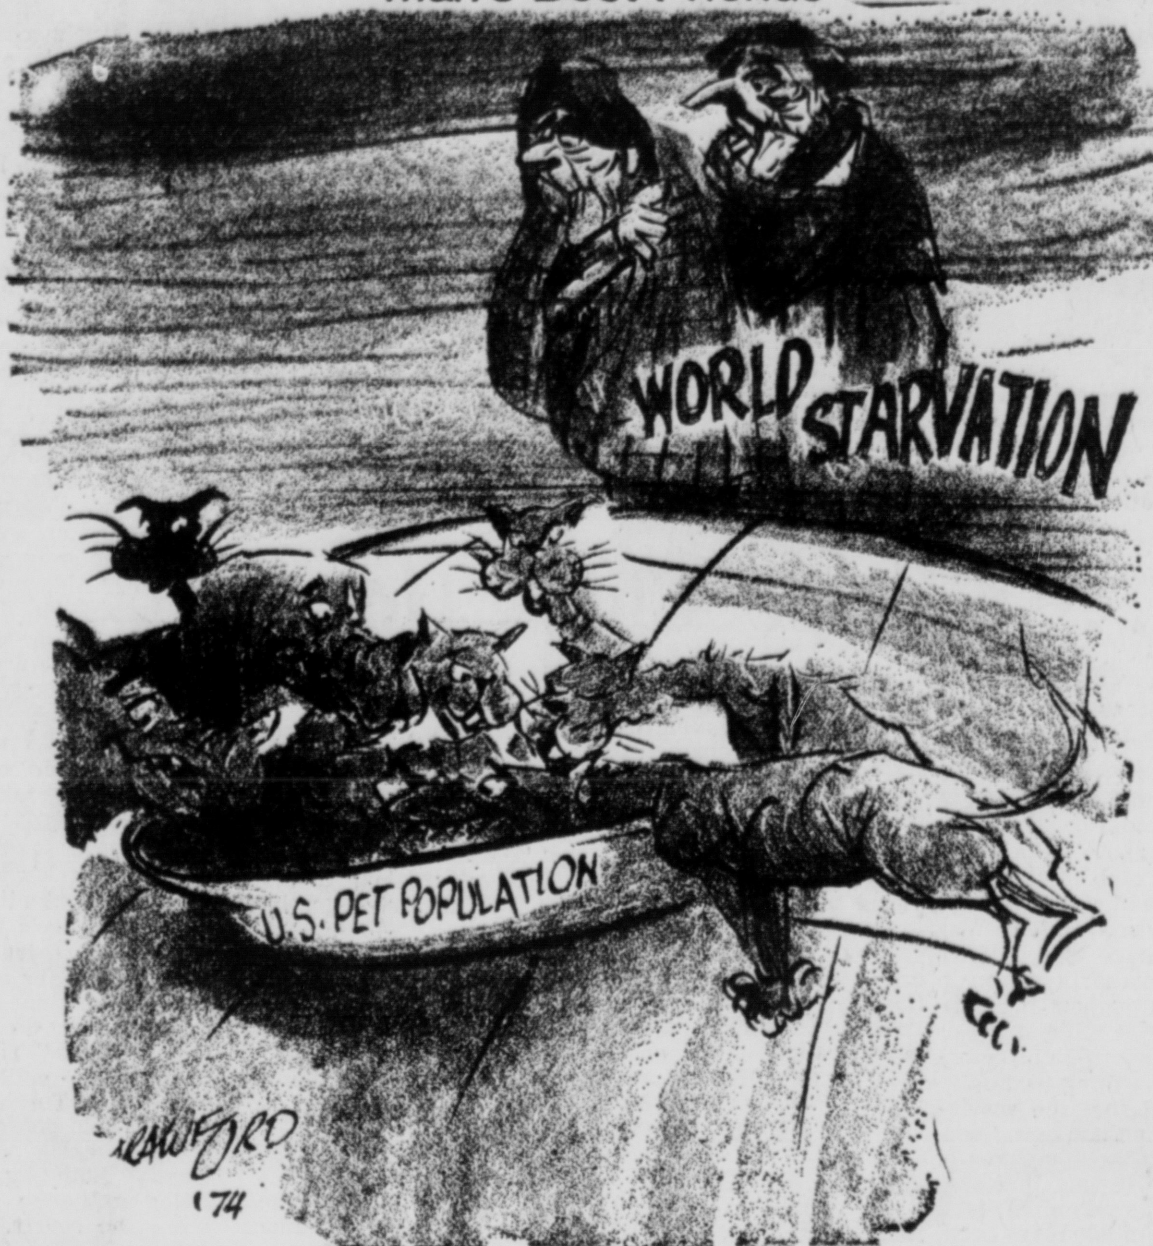

If only a small number of these hunters are successful, the entire species could be nearly wiped out in the area. Yet Montana has refused to close down its season, and the U.S. Forest Service has refused to take action.

Conditional Amnesia

The conditional amnesty plan proposed by President Ford for draft evaders and deserters from the Vietnam War hopefully will go a long way toward mending some of the national rifts left from that unfortunate episode. It is an action that eventually had to be taken if the nation was ever to become whole again. The spectre of thousands of young Americans barred from returning to their homeland could only promulgate the divisiveness.

Earned re-entry, however, is the key to Mr. Ford's proposal, and it isn't too great a burden for those youths involved to devote a period of their time to their country's service. Doubtlessly, many of those who fled the armed services during the Vietnam era did so from lofty moral positions, feeling the fight was both immoral and illegal. Doubtlessly, there were some who fled their obligations simply to protect their own hides. Whose sentiments were sincere and whose were hypocritical is impossible to determine, but the unalterable fact is that the law was broken and some sort of amends are in order.

For those who have already been convicted of either evasion or desertion, the President has appointed a nine-member committee — embracing the full spectrum of sentiment — to individually review each case. The chairman, former Senator Charles Goodell, has described the clemency program as "a good program and a workable program, one that's very generous and designed to heal." Let's hope it works.

Anti-Smoking Impetus

The latest figures on cigarette consumption show that efforts to alert Americans to the health hazard in smoking have substantially failed. This has not diminished the hazard in any way. More effective methods of reducing its impact on our society are plainly needed.

The surgeon general's first report on the subject a decade ago stressed that smoking sharply increases the chances of contracting lung cancer. Subsequent "Smoking and Health" reports have shown statistical links between smoking and numerous other grave illnesses as well. The message has been loud and clear.

The message has not gone completely unheard. Smoking did decline for awhile. In comparison with the 217.3 packs per capita in the year before the first surgeon general's report, for example, consumption went down to 209.7 packs in 1964 and 199.3 packs in 1970.

But that was the low point. Since 1970, per capita cigarette consumption among Americans 18 and older has steadily risen. The Department of Agriculture thinks it will hit 213.5 packs this year, within 2 per cent of the 1963 total.

That is not much to show for 10 years of warnings, not only by the surgeon general's office but by health officials and the medical profession in general. Nor are there signs that smoking can be expected to taper off again; on the contrary, more and more young people are starting the habit.

The government response has been neither intensive nor imaginative. Ten years after the first "Smoking and Health" report, the time has come for a review of the approach to minimizing this threat to public health. The whole effort demands a fresh and more vigorous impetus.

Our favorite sequel to the Evel Knievel fiasco concerns one Walter Cornelius, a doughty Englishman who also intends to hurdle daringly across a stream. His project does not sound quite as gawdy as Knievel's, but in some ways it promises to be a lot more interesting.

Cornelius intends to traverse the 50-yard span of the River Nene at Peterborough. That in itself is not sensational, but ah, the method: he has created a slingshot of giant rubber bands, and seeks 20 strong men to stretch it taut. Now there, in our opinion, is a flight that will be worth witnessing!

Berry's World

© 1974 by NEA, Inc. Jim Bishop

"Rocky, I promised to take Betty out for dinner tonight, and I seem to have the shorts. How about a little loan 'till pay day?"

What Aunt Josie had was pride; what she lacked was mercy. She could be adorable, if you enjoyed being snubbed. She never walked into a room; she swept in, like an ocean liner. Sometimes, when Irv was little, he could imagine smoke pouring out of her stack.

She was a big-chested woman who held her head so high that the kid knew more about the inside of her nostrils than she did. She tolerated people who spoke less than the four languages in which she was so fluent. She could discuss, with precise diction and parsable sentences, almost every subject from politics to popes to puberty.

Aunt Josie never married. Irv asked his mother why. "Because," she said peevishly, "all men are beneath her. She thinks her station in life is very high."

He was nine when Aunt Josie reached the number-one position on his "Drop Dead" list. She sat sipping tea, still wearing that triple-layer mocha cake hat and the crossed foxes which snapped at each other around her throat. "That one," she said, nodding at him, "will never amount to anything."

It was the ultimate judgment. Irving was through at nine. His father, who was the lead elephant in the herd, was afraid of Aunt Josie. In spite of his natural intelligence and deep study, she could make him feel like a boob by turning on a faint forgiving smile.

She was headmistress at a girls' school. The students wore middie-blouses and black ties and navy blue skirts to their knees. They all had the same feeling about her—sheer terror. She steamed their mail open.

And yet she was most religious. Aunt Josie literally lived in church. I suspect that she spoke to God eyeball to eyeball, as an equal. Twice, when she was in Rome examining other old ruins, Irv suspected that she granted an audience to the Pope.

The most obnoxious thing that happened in her life was when John and Mary moved on her block. Aunt Josie had a brother Tim, a ne'er-do-well who owned a big tavern in New York. She never forgave him his riches, and never spoke to him. Tim had a retarded daughter, Mary. She made the third grade in elementary school and that was it. In addition, she stuttered badly.

Mary grew up physically normal. She fell in love with the only emaciated truck driver in the country. John was an amiable person, but Tim warned Mary that if she married John, he would never speak to her again.

Come to think of it, my friend Irv came from a long line of people who enjoyed not speaking to each other. There may have been mists in Mary's mind, but to her John was a knight on a white charger.

She married him. The young couple found a flat down the street from Aunt Josie's sumptuous home and lived happily ever after. Happy is a relative term.

They had each other. John worked for U.S. Trucking, and later for the Lehigh Valley.

Most of the time they didn't have money for shoes. And if they had, they'd have eaten them. They never asked Aunt Josie or anyone else for a dime, and no one ever offered one. Now and then, because Mary was slow in her thinking, she would pay a social call at Aunt Josie's house.

Mary was told that she was hopeless. "Dumb," Mary said solemnly. Irving sat in on a couple of those and flinched at the way Aunt Josie scoured her niece. Mary not only took it, but agreed, and returned for more. Well, as the feller says, time wounds all heels.

Irv's dad died five years ago. The effect was to place him in charge of certain family matters—all of them bad. Aunt Josie was in her dotage, complaining about her bowels and insisting that almost all the people she knew were beneath her station in life.

Ironically, her mind began to wander like Mary's. If there was a difference, it was that Mary and John remained in love with each other and with dire poverty.

When they died, they went one after the other. John had a stroke; Mary sat alone at a TV set until a heart attack took her. Irv ordered them placed in the family burial plot. Aunt Josie did not pay her last respects. That would have been hypocrisy.

Aunt Josie was deep into the 80s. Her time came. Irv was gray and lived far away, but he had the deeds and papers. So he went. And, instead of taking orders from her, it was he who issued them.

He sneaked a hundred dollars into the hand of the superintendent of graves. The man thanked him without looking at it. The diggers dug and dug. They did as Irving asked.

It was, I guess, meanness, or an old rancor. He had Aunt Josie put on the bottom, and Mary and John on top. For all eternity, Aunt Josie is now beneath poor Mary...

Time Wounds All Heels

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

Editor, The Freeman:

On Monday, September 9, representatives of Bathgate Realty were at our Saugerties Village Board Meeting. A Village Board resolution has been passed, by a five to one vote, to sell water and sewage rights to Bathgate for their proposed shopping center outside the village limits. But, in the light of strong opposition to this resolution on the part of village residents, the mayor has refused to sign the contract. We are asking the Board to rescind the resolution, while Bathgate is pressuring the Board not to rescind. In stating their case, the Bathgate representatives called Saugerties a "depressed area" and a "village in despair". They told how Bathgate is going to "give" us a shopping center and all the innumerable benefits of the Eastern Megalopolis. It seems they are charitable organization about to give a wonderful handout to us destitute "apple-knockers" who no longer have the initiative to knock apples. They also said, while insisting they mean to threaten no one, that they will cram this contract down our throats and sue the village and each individual who stands in their way if the Board votes to rescind.

Well, I am not any despairing hick. I do not think any citizen of Saugerties is. I do think it is obvious what Bathgate Realty is up to. They know Saugerties is no depressed area, they admit to doing an intensive study of this whole area. Bathgate knows that the village of Saugerties is a fast-growing shopping center already. Our furniture stores, jewelry stores, specialty food stores, cookery shop, florists, clothing stores, fabric and needlework stores, hardware stores, restaurants, and the rest, plus our pleasant and relaxed one-stop shopping attract customers from all over and are a major reason why many of us have moved to Saugerties. Four new shops, a book store, a music store, a clothing store, and a gift store, have opened this year. We are not depressed, deprived, or despairing. We are thriving and

Equal Rights Amendment

Editor, The Freeman:

I have been silent for a long time, but now it's time to speak out.

Recently, I have heard about the Equal Rights Amendment. This country is in a bad condition now. How would it be if Equal Rights Amendment is passed? How could New York ratify such an amendment? Must all of our rights be invaded?

I feel that as a woman and an American, I must oppose ERA. I do not feel I should be subjected to a life style that would permit the type of immoral society that would exist. I do not appreciate my rights to privacy and the rights to maintain my individuality being jeopardized. I do not think a minority group has the right to tell me I cannot be different from a man, as I was born different and hopefully will remain so. Therefore, I am writing to my representatives and urge all others to do the same.

growing. Bathgate wants to take advantage of the number of shoppers we attract. They want all the benefits of being located within the village, even access to our water and sewage systems. But they are locating just across the village border so they will not have to pay for these benefits by paying village taxes. We responsible village citizens want to save our limited access to water and sewage for those who choose to locate their homes and businesses within the village and pay village taxes. This is how

Fuel-Cost Adjustment

Editor, The Freeman:

Suppose your employer paid your rent for you. Wouldn't that be a raise in pay? An increase in your income? The Internal Revenue Service would consider it part of your income.

Not so, says Central Hudson. Despite the fact that consumers have paid the fuel-cost adjustment since March 1972, Central Hudson maintains that they have not had an increase in rates for several years.

However, the fuel-cost adjustment, a convenient device blessed by the Public Service Commission, does constitute a rate increase of about 30 per cent. Check it out for yourself — multiply the kwh on your electric bill by the fuel-cost adjustment.

But Central Hudson, having obtained this rate increase already and having enjoyed it for more than two years, still insists on a rate increase of 24 per cent for residential users. Frankly, do you think they are entitled to it?

N-Plant Proliferation

Editor, The Freeman:

Hudson Valley Citizens Watch on Nuclear Safety has written the Republican and Democratic nominees for Governor and Senator of the State of New York to call their attention to an issue which is of the utmost importance for residents of the Hudson Valley: namely, the proliferation of nuclear power plants along the Hudson River. "As you know," the letter states, "the Legislatures of four Hudson Valley counties, representing 450,000 people, have passed Resolutions calling for a nuclear moratorium. Niagara County, representing an additional 234,000 people, has done the same. You can see from this that informed citizens are deeply concerned about the hazards of atomic power — with its concomitant hazards of the transportation, then the storage for thousands of years, of radioactive materials, plus the atmospheric, climate and environmental effects of the plants' 50-story cooling towers.

"We believe they are so concerned that they will vote for those candidates, regardless of party, who come out most strongly against the reckless spread of nuclear power. We therefore ask you to take an early, open and forthright stand against the plans of ASDA and PASNY for building atomic plants along the Hudson."

HVCWS suggests that individuals and organizations which are worried about the proposed Lloyd nuclear plants also write similar letters to Hugh Carey and Malcolm Wilson, candidates for Governor, and Ramsey Clark and Jacob Javits, candidates for the Senate.

Yours truly,
NED LEHAC,
Secretary HVCWS

Wrong Party

Editor, The Freeman:

The Tuesday Sept. 10 Daily Freeman editorial: "Gratifying Order" regarding Lori Paton, the New Jersey high school girl, was in error.

The letter she wrote was intended for the SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY, NOT the party mentioned in the editorial.

Yes, it's a hell of a note indeed "that the FBI is thus allowed to continue surveillance of citizens making political inquiries."

The editorial's concluding sentence is worth repeating: "That kind of spying goes against the grain in a free society committed to the principle of freedom of thought and expression."

I hope that Miss Paton's lawyer appeals so that it will be against the law to have investigations of that sort.

By the way, Robert E. Massi, the Socialist Labor Party candidate for U.S. Senator, will be coming to this area on a campaign tour.

Supports Hodge

Editor, The Freeman:

In regard to Rev. Everett Hodge's letter quoting statistics for unnecessary construction of a new high school, my opinion is in complete agreement.

I am a life long resident in the city of Kingston by preference and in 2 years, my child will be attending high school. I want my child to go to school where she lives, not unnecessarily transported through excess taxes miles outside the city and from our residence.

Old building or new, the education values should be standard. Isn't that what we are paying for?

KINGSTON

Investigating a burglary at Royal Tire Company of 15 Railroad Avenue on Tuesday, city police and detectives nabbed two men in connection with the theft, and additionally charged one of the men with possession of heroin, marijuana and a machete.

Richard J. Rodriguez, 27, of Catskill, and Garry R. Lewis, 31, of 236 Catherine Street, Kingston, were initially picked up in a Broadway parking lot as they were allegedly transferring $222.50 in stolen tires from the Rodriguez car to Lewis' auto, police said.

Rodriguez was charged with third degree burglary. Lewis was charged with third degree possession of stolen property.

Lewis was additionally charged with third and seventh degree possession of a controlled substance and with third degree possession of a dangerous weapon after quantities of alleged heroin, marijuana and a machete were found in his auto, police said.

Lewis was confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $4,500 bail after arraignment before Rosendale Town Justice Albert Morelli. Rodriguez was jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail.

Meanwhile, city detectives are investigating the theft of an estimated $1,090 in cash, jewelry, silverware and other items reported taken in burglary committed sometime Monday or Tuesday at the Jack Listanovsky residence at 10 Lipton

Maritime Unions Use Political Fund Chest for Shipping Lobby

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maritime unions still have $886,000 for political donations, after pouring one-third of a million dollars into campaigns of congressmen who supported them on a hotly disputed shipping bill.

Latest campaign finance reports show the unions have given $333,300 to 141 congressmen who supported the bill. The measure would require that eventually 30 per cent of all U.S. oil imports be shipped in American-flag ships, manned by union crews.

The unions still have some of the richest political trusts in the nation, the reports show. Federal law sets no limit on political donations by union groups, so long as the funds come from voluntary contributions of members. Direct donations from a union treasury to other maritime unions.

The reports show the union money given to incumbents since Jan. 1 has gone almost exclusively to those who voted for the bill or supported it in days before the Senate vote on Sept. 5. A spokesman declined comment when asked if Javits had feared the money would create a conflict of interest.

The senator, Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., gave $8,500 back to the maritime engineers union two days before the Senate vote on Sept. 5. A spokesman declined comment when asked if Javits had feared the money would create a conflict of interest.

The largest donation by the unions went to Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who denied that the $20,000 received by him from the maritime engineers union was one of the bill's sponsors, got $12,900, chairman of the Merchant Marine subcommittee, and as floor manager of the bill he guided it through the measure.

Another sponsor, Sen. Bob Packwood, D-Ore., got $10,000. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, got $14,500; Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, defeated for re-nomination, $13,000; Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, $10,000; Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., $7,500, and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., $7,200.

Other big donations went to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., $14,500; Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, defeated for re-nomination, $13,000; Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, $10,000; Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., $7,500, and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., $7,200.

Power Pool Plans Doubled Production by 1989

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State's electric power companies plan to double the output of the New York Power Pool over the next 15 years by installing 33 million kilowatts of new generating capacity.

A spokesman for the power pool said the planned doubling should adequately provide for future peak power demands through 1989.

William C. Franklin, executive director of the pool—which is coordinating the long range plans of the eight major electric power company systems in the state—told the Public Service Commission a current forecast of a five per cent growth rate is well below the growth rate of the past.

The PSC opened a two-day public hearing Wednesday on the second annual long range plan of the state's electric utility industry.

Among those testifying before the commission was Arthur Hauspurg, senior vice president of Consolidated Edison Co. He said delays, caused by litigation, in the construction of a new generating plant at Cornwall could make 1980 a critical year for the state's largest power utility.

He said the pinch six years from now could be alleviated if the State Power Authority has in operation two planned generating facilities which are to provide power for the Metropolitan Transportation Authority.

In response to a question from the commission, Hauspurg denied that Con Ed's financial difficulties had increased the prospects of future power failures. However, he conceded the company's maintenance budget has been reduced by about $8 million, but called this a reduction to a "normal level."

James L. Biggane, commissioner of the State Department of Environmental Conservation, told the PSC that the utilities have not taken the effect of energy conservation measures into consideration in planning their growth forecasts.

"No utility," Biggane said in a statement, "has evaluated or analyzed the effectiveness of its energy conservation measures, nor has any made a genuine attempt to evaluate how much energy conservation measures will affect future demands."

The second-largest donation went to Long's counterpart in the House, Rep. Frank M. Clark, D-Pa., chairman of the Merchant Marine subcommittee, which cleared the bill before the House approved it last May. Clark got $17,500.

The third-largest sum went to House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. He received $16,000.

The maritime unions seemed to put their donations where

'74 Pumpkin Sale ... Plans Underway

KINGSTON Plans are underway for the 1974 Pumpkin Sail of the historic Hudson River Sloop, the Clearwater, which will take place on Oct. 18. Once again, Kingston has been chosen as the site of the pumpkin loading.

The Pumpkin Sail will see the sloop Clearwater sail from Albany to New York City, with festivals and celebrations at several riverside communities along the way. At Kingston, the Clearwater will be loaded with tons of pumpkins by area school-children. The pumpkins will sail to New York City where they will be sold at a festival there. The Pumpkins Sail illustrates the importance the Hudson River had as a thoroughfare between the rich agricultural lands in the Cats-kills, and the markets of the city.

The night before the pumpkin loading, Oct. 17, Kingston will be the scene of a fund-raising concert for the Hudson River Sloop Restoration Project, Inc., and the Ulster County chapter.

At the pumpkin loading festival on Oct. 18, live music will be provided by area musicians, and there will be booths, refreshments, and entertainment. At the end of the day the sloop, loaded with pumpkins, will begin the sail to New York City, with stops along the way for other harvest festivals.

Area musicians interested in performing at the concert or the festival, or anyone interested in planning the festivities are invited to call the chairman of the local chapter, Thomas Phillips.

Senior citizens are advised that they may attend any of these flu shot clinics at any location convenient to them. They do not necessarily have to attend the clinic nearest their home.

Further information about any of these clinics is available by calling the Ulster County Health Department at Kingston, or any of the Health Offices throughout the county.

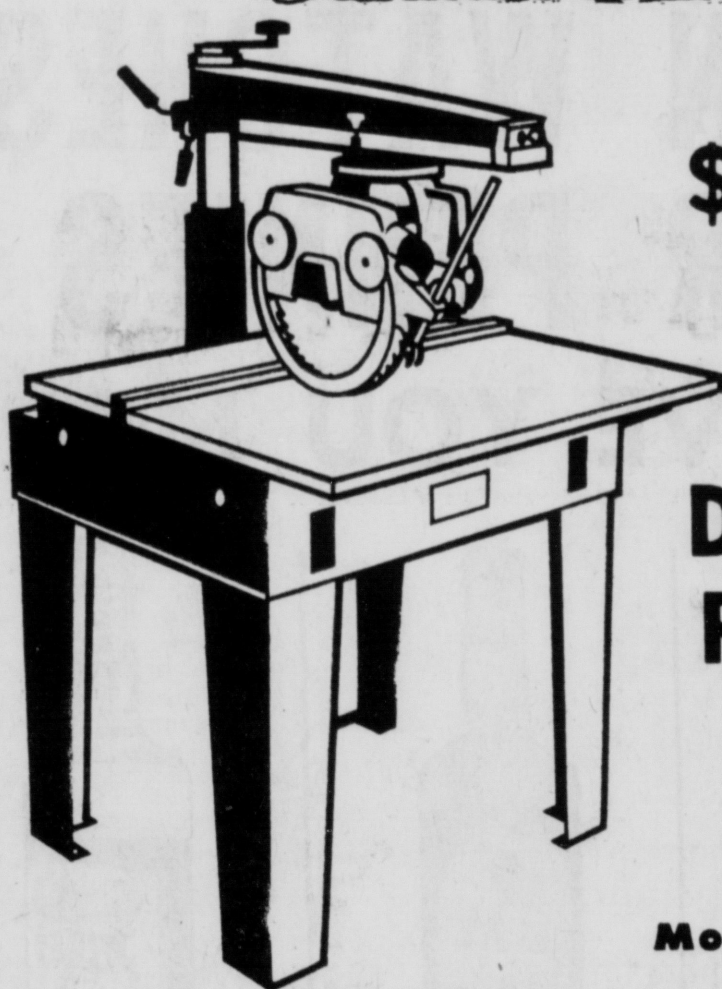

PENNY FOR YOUR THOUGHTS — That's about all a penny buys these days. City of Kingston has gone modern with the installation of new nickel/dime meters replacing penny parking meters, some of which dates to 1946. Mayor Francis R. Koenig is flanked by City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco (L) and Alderman Peter J. Mancuso (D-12th Ward).

chairman of the Common Council's Traffic Committee, holding one of the new meters. The city ordered 700 meters at a cost of some $45,000 which city officials say will pay for themselves within three years due to higher revenues. Installation of the meters which began to arrive last week, is expected within the next month. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market backed off a bit today in a pause from its rebound of the two previous sessions.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down about a point, and losers took a narrow lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts noted a carryover of the gradual pullback that set in late Tuesday and cut some sharp gains recorded earlier in the day down to more moderate proportions.

Food Prices... Upward Trend

By United Press International
A summer drought has boosted supermarket prices, grain shortages they are predicting, said Mack James, containing oil, such as mar-frying chickens, were up by 16 cents a pound, the price of owner of Mack's Big Star Supermarkets in Marion, Ill. "Prices on these items have doubled and the price skyrocketed during the past few of margarine nearly doubled. Leon Dillenborg, a spokesman for the Bay Area Grocers Association, said most grocers have noticed that people are simply eating less. "Maybe it's the heavy emphasis on diet as well as rising up with increases ranging from 9 to 20 cents a pound. Chicken food costs," he said.

Wilson Wants Housing Funds

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Malcolm Wilson asked the state Mortgage Agency Tuesday to consider pumping another $200 million into the residential housing market. But Wilson acknowledged that interest rates are now too high to permit the agency to do so. In a statement directed at the problems of the housing industry and "the need for support of construction jobs," Wilson also proposed two federal actions he said would improve the mortgage market. He called for federal legislation to permit a personal income tax exemption for interest earned on personal savings accounts, and to raise the present $20,000 maximum insurance on bank deposits to as much as $40,000. Both federal steps would be designed to attract more money back into banks and other savings institutions, which could then use it for mortgage loans. Savings banks, the major source of mortgage money, have been suffering massive withdrawals in recent months by customers seeking to invest their money in higher-yielding bonds and securities. Analysts say that is one major reason for the current tight mortgage market. In July, the State of New York Mortgage Agency, acting at Wilson's urging, put $100 million into the mortgage market. But interest rates have risen since then, and state officials acknowledged that they will have to come back down to allow the agency to pump money into the market. The Mortgage Agency acts by selling tax-exempt bonds on the open market, and then using the money it raises to buy old, low-yielding mortgages from banks. The banks then use the

Rotary Debut in Spring

DETROIT (UPI) — The long-awaited General Motors rotary engine, with fuel economy close to 30 miles per gallon, will debut next spring in a new squareback version of Chevrolet's new sporty Monza 2 plus in October. Production will begin in winter with introduction possibly as early as next April. While McDonald refused to talk fuel economy, GM President Edward N. Cole confirmed that the engine would get between 32 and 34 miles per gallon at a steady 30 miles an hour in a 3,500 pound car. The Monza 2 plus 2, with its small 4-cylinder engine, weighs 2,763 pounds. At a steady 70 m.p.h., the rotary-engine car has obtained 21 to 23 m.p.g. Cole said. The only car now sold in the United States with the rotary engine is the Japanese-built Mazda.

Balance of Payments... Oil Blamed for Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that the country's balance of payments was in deficit by $2.7 billion during the second quarter, compared with a surplus of $1.6 billion in the second quarter of the previous year, due largely to a big difference in the outflow of dollars to pay for foreign oil and an increase in U.S. investments abroad. The second quarter deficit compared with a surplus in the first three months of the year of $1.8 billion and was the biggest deficit since $2.9 billion in the third quarter of 1972. The adverse shift in the balance of payments, which appeared to be much larger than expected, marks a resumption of the big flow of dollars out of the United States that was partially responsible for two devaluations of the dollar in 1971 and 1973. There was an increase of $1 billion in U.S. direct investment abroad, the department reported, raising the total for investment for the period to $1.6 billion. Foreign investment in this country increased slightly by $200 million to a total of $1.5 billion in the period.

BICENTENNIAL PLANNING — Members of the Kingston Bicentennial Commission, John L. Weber (L), Mrs. Adam H. Porter and Harry Rigby Jr., prepare for the city-wide Bicentennial planning meeting that will be held Sept. 19 at City Hall. The Kingston Bicentennial Commission has invised a number of local organizations to attend the meeting to stimulate and coordinate the city's observance of the 200th birthday of the United States. The evening meeting is also open to the public. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Young Dems Approve Slate

NEWBURGH The candidacies of former Congressman John G. Dow, Highland Falls Mayor King James Weyant and Peter Sala, have received the support of New York State Young Democrats, according to an announcement made by the organization's president, Rudolph Gannascoli.

Dow, a Democrat-Liberal, seeks the seat now held by incumbent Republican Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman in the 26th District. Weyant, running on the Democrat line is in contention for State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn's post in the 40th District and Sala is the Democratic candidate for State Senate in the 39th District, seeking to unseat State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, incumbent Republican.

In endorsing the candidacies of Dow and Weyant, and Sala, Gannascoli said his organization has found their integrity and commitment to the Democratic principles of good government warrant the endorsement.

Dow also received the endorsement of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, saying he has always enjoyed widespread support in labor circles because of his record in Congress which was 96 per cent, according to the AFL-CIO rating of congressmen.

"This is far and away better than the labor record of the current congressman in this district," explained Dow. "It should be clear that his associations with the administration in Washington, which has never been favorable to labor, disqualifies him for labor support."

Dow has already been endorsed by the Amalgamated Meat Cutters, Local 474, and the Communications Workers, Local 1107.

Hinchey Wants Disclosure Legislation

SAUGERTIES

Maurice Hinchey, Democrat-Liberal candidate for the 101st Assembly seat today called for state legislation that would require all elected state officials and candidates for elective office to disclose their net worth, amount and sources of income, taxes paid, sources of gifts, and transactions in securities, commodities, and real property.

"The need for this legislation," Hinchey said, is prompted by heightened interest, both at the state and federal levels, in the fiscal status of public officials and by similar financial disclosure legislation now pending before the U.S. Congress.

"Each legislator," he said, "should make public a notarized identification of all sources of income. Attorneys who are legislators should report the names of clients who do business with the State of New York."

Hinchey said that he would make a personal financial disclosure within the next few weeks.

"This legislation is needed," Hinchey said, "in order to restore and maintain the confidence and integrity of American Government at the federal and state level and to compel those elected officials who will not voluntarily do so, to make honest financial disclosures to their constituents. This should be the basic minimum requirement for election to public office this year, if we are going to dispel doubts about our ability to insure honest government. I believe that it's one of the commitments that comes with the job."

Magnarella Hits Veto

LLOYD

Governor Wilson's veto of two sewer bills "will saddle the Town of Lloyd with thousands of dollars in added construction costs, and further delay installation of sanitation facilities for Highland residents," according to Phillip J. Magnarella, Democratic candidate for the State assembly.

In an appearance before the Lloyd Town Board last week, Magnarella noted that Wilson had termed the proposed legislation "defective." Magnarella cited Wilson's vetoes as "tragic costly results of the absence of competent representation in Albany for our local government."

Magnarella told the board he had spoken with representatives of the Comptroller's Office and with the Office for Local Government in Albany "with a view to drafting proper legislation." He pledged to introduce this legislation "as the first order of business when the legislature convenes in January, if I am elected to represent the 99th Assembly District."

The defective bills were introduced by Magnarella's opponent, Assemblyman Emeel Betros (R-Poughkeepsie).

"Local government officials cannot be expected to be familiar with all the intricacies of legislative language, especially when the subjects involve several government agencies."

"That is the responsibility of their state representative. Mr. Betros is an attorney. He had the facilities of a professional bill drafting staff available in Albany. It is inexcusable to introduce and sponsor legislation this is defective on several counts. The delay and the inconvenience and the added cost to the Town of Lloyd are the results of gross incompetence," Magnarella charged.

TOP-OF-THE-LINE CAPRICE CLASSIC

Chevrolet . . . Exciting Additions

DETROIT, MICH. Chevrolet Motor Division marks one of the most significant years of product development in its history for 1975 with important breakthroughs in vehicle design and an expanded lineup of 46 models in eight different car lines.

Pace-setters in the 1975 Chevrolet fleet are an all-new sporty sub-compact, the Monza 2+2 hatchback and the top-of-the-line Luxury Nova (LN) which will be available in both two- and four-door models.

The exciting addition to the Chevrolet family, the Monza 2+2, is a sporty sub-compact with a European styling flair and has two seats in front and room for two passengers in the rear. It unveils a new body and power train and features twin rectangular headlights.

The new Nova, representing one of its most extensive model year changes since being introduced as the Chevy II in 1962, spotlights new luxury models, new styling and important mechanical and structural revisions.

The Chevrolet passenger car lineup for 1975 will be unveiled in dealer's showrooms Sept. 27, except for Sportvan, Corvette and Vega models which will be publicly introduced at a later date.

Heart of the extensive new vehicle systems design program for 1975 is a combination of mechanical advances designated as the "Chevrolet efficiency system." The system includes use of an underfloor catalytic converter and no-lead fuel for control of exhaust emissions.

Other features of the 1975 Chevrolet include:

Two different appearances in the grille distinguishing Caprice models from Impalas and Bel Airs. A total of 15 models in three series — Caprice, Classic and Estate, Impala and Bel Air.

New front styling for the Chevelle to prove different looks for Malibu Classic and Malibu models.

A new look features a wrap-around rear window for the Camaro and more luxurious interiors for the LT model, the new sport decor package.

The popular styling of the Vega is retained but a list of 268 new parts and accessories ranges from engine and suspension equipment to new power brake and tilt steering wheel options.

Other changes have been made in the Monte Carlo, Corvette, Monza and 2+2 and the Nova.

Chase Branch In Dutchess

POUGHKEEPSIE

Chase Manhattan Bank of Mid-Hudson, N.A. opened a branch banking office at 294 Main Mall, Poughkeepsie Sept. 6. It is Chase's fifth branch in the Mid-Hudson area.

Branch executive is 37-year Chase veteran Raymond C. Thompson. Thompson, who lives in Hyde Park, was formerly a branch executive in New York City.

Services offered at the Poughkeepsie branch include consumer and commercial loans, checking and savings accounts, savings certificates, "Nest Egg" time deposit accounts and residential mortgage loans.

In addition, the branch offers Chase's unique Automatic Stock Investment Plan, permitting holders of Chase checking accounts to purchase shares of stock in one or more of the largest corporations included in Standard & Poor's Industrial Index. Under the plan, purchases are made automatically by monthly deductions of any amount from $20 to $500.

Persons opening new accounts during the four-week grand opening will be offered a choice of a two-piece corning ware set, electric can opener, electric clock, frypan set, bake, broil and lasagna pan set, parsons table, radio, blanket, men's and women's wallet, gold-filled pen or coffee pot.

In addition, special gifts for opening an account of $5,000 or more will include dinner service for four, steam & dry iron, electric wall chime clock or a music box.

Customers opening $100 savings and $100 checking accounts, and applying for Cash Reserve, are eligible for Superjackpot gifts of flatware service for eight, toaster oven or electric broiler and fryer.

Everyone visiting the branch during the celebration will be eligible to participate in an awards contest that includes prizes a color TV, black & white TV, two clock radios, two cassette recorders and two AM-FM radios.

During the celebration, banking hours will be 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday until Sept. 20.

Regular banking hours, beginning Sept. 23, will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The bank will be open Thursday evenings from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The Poughkeepsie branch brings to 228 the number of Chase Manhattan banking offices in the Metropolitan Area, Long Island, Westchester and Upstate New York. Not a newcomer to the area, Chase Manhattan established a bank in Poughkeepsie in 1809 which did business in the mid-Hudson region for nine years.

Chase Manhattan Bank of Mid-Hudson was established in 1973 as a wholly-owned subsidiary of The Chase Manhattan Corporation, the nation's third largest bank holding company.

Chase Manhattan Bank, Mid-Hudson, also operates two banks in the Saugerties area, one on Main Street and the other at the Simmons Plaza.

Bank Sponsors TV Football

WOODSTOCK
Rondout National Bank will again co-sponsor the televised National Football League (NFL) games this season, it has been announced by Ken E. Osterhoudt, vice president.

The excitement and color of live professional NFL football that has become a major fall television event will be seen on the NBC television network station, Channel 4, beginning Oct. 27. Throughout the months of October, November and December, Rondout National Bank will help sponsor the series of televised games as a member of the American Bankers Association (ABA). The schedule of championship playoff on Dec. 29.

The NFL games will provide a showcase of specially prepared television commercials for America's bankers. Astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first man to land on the moon, will appear in one of more of the 60-second commercials.

Armstrong recently signed an agreement with the ABA giving the banking industry association the option to use him as its advertising spokesman for a period of up to three years. His first television commercial for the ABA was filmed at Columbia, Md., a new planned commercial will conclude with the community where banks continue to play an important role in financing community growth.

Each commercial is designed to show the role of banks in the growth and development of communities and how people can better use their bank.

In addition to the regular season and championship playoff games on NBC, the banking industry also will sponsor a special six-part series of programs based on Carl Sandburg's biography of Abraham Lincoln. Emmy award winner Hal Holbrook portrayed President Lincoln in the first of the hour-long specials on the television network last Friday night.

A&W's GREAT ROOT BEAR

'Root Bear' Coming to Town

The "Great Root Bear," A&W International's giant, kid-loving good-will ambassador is coming to Kingston.

Burt and Rosemary Ellis, Bear was created for the owners of the local A & W Restaurant, 25 Converse Street, that conceived California's Disneyland costumes. A & W spent will be at their eatery next Saturday and Sunday afternoon, alone, according to Ellis.

Standing nearly seven feet tall, the Great Root Bear is a whimsical, animated-type costume character created exclusively for A & W franchises, at the A & W and seeing the according to Ellis.

"We'll have Great Root Bear every youngster a real thrill."

O'Connor Electric . . . A New Name

KINGSTON
It's now the Joseph O'Connor, Electrical Supply Co. Inc.

That's the word from Joseph O'Connor, who has been president of the Kingston City Electric Company, located at 21 Grand Street.

O'Connor said one reason for the change in name is to more clearly establish his association with the electrical supply end of the business.

"Many people were aware of my electrical contracting company, (Joe E. O'Connor Electrical Contractors, Inc.) with which I am no longer associated. But not as many were aware of my involvement with Kingston City Electric," O'Connor pointed out.

O'Connor continued: "Actually, this electrical supply business was founded more than 20 years ago on the premise that we know all our customers well enough to provide them with personal service. Well, that premise has not changed. Although we've had successful growth over the years, we're still small enough today to provide that same kind of personal service our customers have come to expect."

"In fact, with our new showroom and well trained staff, we're better able to serve our customers than ever before," O'Connor concluded.

Directors Are Named

POUGHKEEPSIE
A Millbrook, Dutchess County man, is one of two new directors named to the Marine Midland-Southeastern's Board of Directors, according to Peter Dudan, chairman.

Scott R. Wheaton, president and chairman of the executive committee of Fargo Manufacturing Company, Inc., a resident of Millbrook, is one of the directors.

Also named was Charles F. Mansfield, chairman of the executive committee, Marine Midland Bank, New York.

Dudan also announced the retirement of Stephen P. Becker from the bank's board of directors after 33 years. Becker is chairman of the board of Fargo.

Wheaton holds the following Directorships: Fargo Mfg. Company, Inc.; Fargo, Inc.; James L. Taylor Manufacturing Company and Standard Gage Co. He serves as Trustee and treasurer of the Dutchess Day School, Millbrook; secretary and treasurer, Sandanona Beagles, Millbrook. He is a member of the Board of Governors of the Lyall Memorial Church, Millbrook and past president of the Dutchess County YMCA.

He is a member of the Poughkeepsie Tennis Club, Millbrook Golf and Tennis Club, Amrita Club, Poughkeepsie Area Chamber of Commerce, National Electrical Manufacturers Association and the Northwest Electric Light & Power Association, Portland, Oregon.

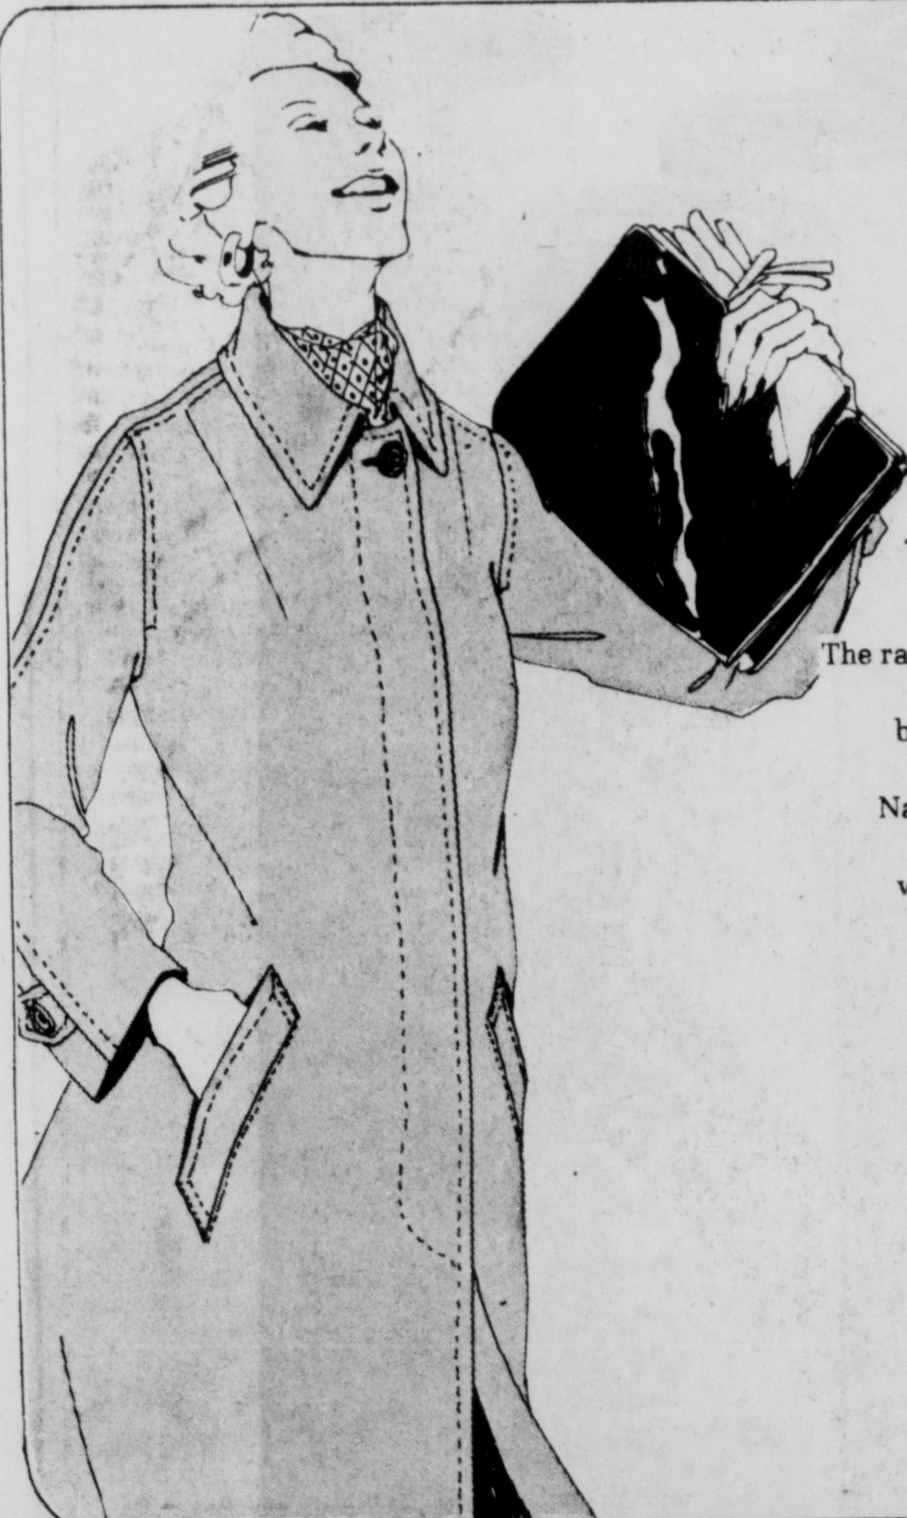

He is a member of the Association of Reserve City Bankers, the New York Bankers Urban Affairs Committee and Robert Morris Associates.

Mansfield serves as President and Governor of The Bankers Club of America, Inc., and Treasurer and Governor of the Deepdale Golf Club, Inc. He is a member of The Economic Club of New York, The City Midway Club and the Westhampton Country Club.

Mansfield and his family reside in Garden City, New York. A branch of Marine Midland in Kingston is located in the Mammoth Mall shopping complex, Ulster Avenue Mall.

Pupil Evaluation Scores Released

The State Education Department has released scores on the reading and mathematics tests administered to all third, sixth, and ninth graders in October 1973 as part of the Pupil Evaluation Program (PEP).

The tests have been given each fall since 1966 to all public and nonpublic school students. About 900,000 students in 5,000 different schools are tested annually.

Pupil achievement in both reading and math for the three grades is measured against a statewide reference point for each test in order to help identify and locate target groups of low achieving pupils in need of remedial and developmental programs. The test scores used to identify these target groups were determined in 1966, explained Victor A. Taber, director of the Division of Educational Testing, in an effort to balance the needs of pupils against the available resources.

The department reports that for the state as a whole, there has been little change in the percentages of pupils scoring below the statewide reference points from 1972 to 1973. On the third grade reading test 23 per cent of the pupils scored below the statewide reference point in both years. On the sixth grade reading test 27 per cent scored below this point in 1972 and 28 per cent in 1973. In the ninth grade, 30 per cent scored below this point in both years.

In math, 18 per cent of third graders scored below the reference point in both years; in sixth grade 30 per cent in 1972 and 32 per cent in 1973 were below the reference point; and in ninth grade, 32 per cent in 1972 and 34 per cent in 1973 scored below this point.

The major trends in the level of achievement in reading and mathematics statewide since 1966 remain the same as in 1972. In reading the percentage of pupils scoring below the 1966 statewide reference point has remained practically unchanged in grade 3, but has increased somewhat in grades 6 and 9. Most of the increases occurred before 1970 and since then the percentages have remained relatively stable. In mathematics the percentage of pupils scoring below the 1966 statewide reference point has decreased in grade 3 and has increased in grades 6 and 9. However, the rate of change since 1970 has not been as high as that from 1966 to 1970.

The percentage of low-scoring pupils in the New York City public schools and in the large city public schools continues to remain at a high level in both reading and mathematics for all three grades. In grade 3 reading, however, while the statewide percentage has remained relatively constant, the percentage for the New York City public schools has improved from 47 per cent in 1966 to 42 per cent in 1973. The percentage in the large city public schools has also improved considerably, with a decrease from the high of 40 per cent in 1971 to 34 per cent in 1973.

In grade 3 mathematics the percentage for the New York City public schools has improved markedly from 54 per cent in 1966 to 38 per cent in 1973. The percentage for the large city public schools also has decreased from a high of 32 per cent in 1970 and 1971 to 27 per cent in 1973.

In commenting on the test results, Taber cautioned that the number of pupils scoring above the reference point in a particular school, is not in itself an index of the quality of the educational program in that school. "Test results, by themselves do not indicate the effectiveness of instruction, nor do they indicate the extent to which pupils are attaining many of the other important goals of education."

He added: "High test results do not necessarily indicate high quality teaching; but neither can they be casually dismissed as attributable to high pupil potential. In each particular school situation, constructive action leading to improved educational achievement will require a realistic look at all of the factors influencing pupil achievement."

City Woman Pleads Guilty

KINGSTON — Maryann Parker, 23-year-old Kingston woman who went on to sentence her to more than 15 years in prison, he will give her a chance to withdraw her plea, for an excellent job of investigation. George Chichefsky, the 65-year-old man with whom she resided at 33 Broadway, changed her plea of innocent in Ulster County Court Tuesday to manslaughter in the first degree. The plea exposes her to a sentence of a maximum of 25 years in prison. Presiding County Judge Raymond J. Mino told the court, however that if after reading a pre-sentence report of the Probation Department concerning circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Parker, he feels compelled to sentence her to more than 15 years of work of Detectives Curtis Van Demark and Edwards Orlieb. Miss Parker was indicted by the Ulster County Grand Jury on two counts—intentional murder and felony murder. The prosecutor, First Assistant District Attorney Ellen G. Donovan, said she was satisfied with the plea in view of the psychiatric background of some of the persons involved and due to the fact that drinking at old son, whose name was with- allegedly played a part in the held.

Two Nabbed for Robbery Face Related Charges

BALLSTON SPA, N.Y. (UPI) — Two young men, arrested on charges of robbing a bank in Essex County, were being held in the Saratoga County Jail today in connection with other robberies, police said. Cecil Dunbar, 21, and Kyle

Gunman Robs Paltz Motel

NEW PALTZ — State Police BIC investigators say a lone gunman wearing a Halloween mask entered a New Paltz motel early today and forced the young female night clerk on duty to open the safe.

Police say the man, described only as a white male apparently in his middle twenties made off with $250 in cash after binding and gagging the clerk.

The man, who wore what was described as a witch's mask and a cap, entered the Three Penny Inn, formerly the College Motor Inn, off Route 299 near the Thruway interchange at about 5 a.m.

The night clerk, who was not injured according to police, was tied to a chair before the gunman fled. She freed herself and contacted authorities.

The clerk, who was said to be in her twenties, was not immediately identified. It was not immediately known how the gunman fled the scene — whether on foot or by vehicle — police said.

An intensive investigation is continuing.

Hubble, 20, both of the Saratoga County community of Corinth, were arrested Tuesday and charged with robbing the Willsboro Essex County Champlain Bank a few hours earlier, state police said. Authorities said $20,000 was recovered.

Police said the men were returned to Saratoga County in connection with robberies in Hadley and Corinth. They were arraigned before Malta Town Justice Morgan Bloodgood and ordered held without bail.

Troopers said the suspects were picked up at the Essex ferry crossing on the west shore of Lake Champlain. They were waiting to take the ferry to Vermont, police said.

Troopers said the pair, with bandanas tied across their faces, entered the bank at mid-morning with weapons. One had a shotgun and the other a handgun. Police said one youth stood guard at the bank door, while the other rifled teller's cages.

No shots were fired and no one was injured during the bank holdup.

State police said bloodhounds found the clothing the pair wore buried about one mile from the bank. The cash and weapons were buried in the ground at a spot about five miles from the holdup, troopers said.

Lucky Luciano Memoirs Reveal Political Involvements

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mobster Charles "Lucky" Luciano contributed $90,000 to the campaign of former New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, according to Luciano memoirs published in Penthouse Magazine Monday.

According to the memoirs, Luciano made a $90,000 gubernatorial campaign contribution to Dewey and a promise to help him carry Manhattan in exchange for a transfer from the state prison at Dannemora to Great Meadow prison in Comstock.

When he served as New York City rackets prosecutor, Dewey obtained a conviction in 1936 sending Luciano to Dannemora for 30 to 50 years for operating a $12 million-a-year prostitution ring.

Luciano said the burning of the French luxury ship "The Normandie" was arranged for him by Albert Anastasia, to force Dewey's associates to turn to Luciano, even though he was in prison, to keep peace on the waterfront.

He said that after the fire Dewey's aides met him in prison.

Luciano said he told them he would help maintain security on the waterfront and give Dewey all his political support, "then as soon as he got into office, he had to make me a hero. The only difference would be, a parole."

Luciano then made the $90,000 gubernatorial campaign contribution and, when he was elected, Dewey arranged the parole on the condition that he agree to be deported to Italy and never return to the United States, Luciano said.

Dewey, who died in 1971, was also said to have agreed "not to put the heat on the outfit" as he had from 1939 to 1941, the article said.

The article also stated that Luciano said then-Gov. Huey Long of Louisiana told him during the 1932 Democratic convention that he would open up his state for mob gambling in return for $3 million.

Luciano was also quoted as saying he met with an aide of New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt before the convention to discuss ways the syndicate would help him win support in New York City.

The aide reportedly told Luciano that Roosevelt would sidetrack an investigation into city corruption being conducted by Judge Samuel Seabury. After his election as president, Roosevelt supported Seabury.

The article, "The Last Testament of Lucky Luciano," a condensation of a book of the same name which will be published this fall, was written from tape recordings and notes made by Luciano before his death in 1962.

KINGSTON

Seven restaurants in Ulster County have been found to have outstanding health code violations according to an announcement made this week by the Ulster County Health Department.

During restaurant inspections of 323 establishments during the months of July and August, the seven found to be in violation were: High Falls Diner and Ivan's Inn in the Town of Marlinton, Village Pizza, Woodstock; T.D. Coffee, Saugerties; The Well, Rosendale; Pleasure Yacht Inn, Town of Ulster and Cal Bar and Grill, Town of Wawarsing.

Health Commissioner Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto, who cracked down on repeated violators during the past year, said his drive for cleanliness in the county's restaurants is paying off with an increased number of restaurants being found with no outstanding violations. He said he has been sending out letters of commendation to those food establishment owners with no violations at all and whose restaurants have been found to be in excellent condition.

A school for restaurant owners and food handlers has also been established by Dr. Dutto and has proved highly successful in that great interest has been shown with good attendance.

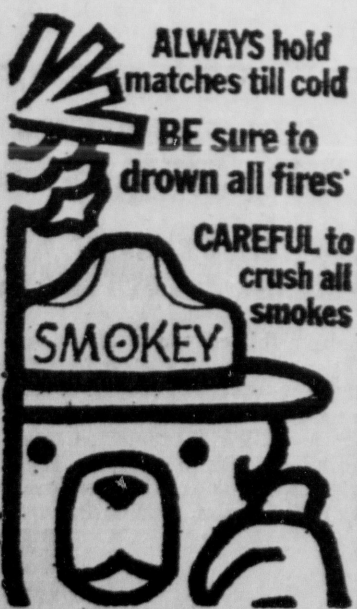

A partial list of those restaurants with no outstanding violations has been revealed. The Freeman will publish the remainder of the list of 323 in future editions.

Vogt Sees Decrease In Hard Drug Use

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON — Hard drug traffic in Ulster County has decreased since New York State's new drug laws went into effect Sept. 1, 1973, according to District Attorney Francis J. Vogt. But during the same period there has been an increase in the availability and use of marijuana, Vogt told the Freeman in an interview concerning the first year under the new laws which have been heralded by some as the toughest in the country. "We have noticed a definite decrease in hard drug traffic," Vogt said, adding that it is difficult to determine whether the decrease is because the traffic has "gone underground" or because there are, in fact, less drugs available. "Whatever the reason, I think it's a healthy result," he said.

According to the district attorney, people who might be enticed into the hard drug scene are finding it very difficult to find a supply. "But I'm not so naive as to believe that people who have been on hard drugs for years don't still have their sources," Vogt explained. And yet, there has been no decrease in marijuana use. "As a matter of fact there has been a substantial increase in the availability and, I think, the use of marijuana," Vogt said. "Marijuana is unfortunately becoming part of our culture." The marijuana laws, as Vogt explained, were left basically unchanged from before, with the penalties, unlike those concerning other drugs, left up to the prosecution and judiciary with the possibility of "some horribly unjust results." Vogt explained that a person convicted of marijuana sale could be sentenced to up to 15 years in one area of the state while getting off virtually without penalty in another. But, Vogt suggested, since the most stringent penalty is almost never imposed, a disregard for the law is being created. "The legislature is going to have to accept the responsibility and decide what it is going to do. If the law has to be changed, they should change it," he said. Referring to the fact that marijuana was virtually excluded from the new drug laws, Vogt added, "The Legislature obviously considers marijuana something else."

The district attorney said he anticipates no calendar congestion problems under the new laws in Ulster County. "We have had only four or five cases where the new drug laws come into play, and they haven't come to trial yet," Vogt said. Since so few cases have come to trial, it is too early to make a judgement on whether the new laws are accomplishing the desired end of putting pushers of hard drugs behind bars, he told the Freeman.

And yet Vogt indicated optimism about the new laws. "I think anything that makes hard drugs tougher to get is a good thing," he said. "There was a time you could go through certain communities and see people standing on street corners dealing. But even the hallucinogens are not easy to buy any more."

The department receives "an enormous amount of telephone calls for help daily and encourages 'walk-ins,'" Dr. Joseph said, explaining that 24-hour emergency help is available. There presently is one full-time psychologist and several part-time whose basic qualifications include a doctorate. The staff also includes an alcohol abuse coordinator, social workers, mental health aides and occupational therapists.

As a result of the increased staff "at no additional cost" the department has been able to establish special units such as one for children and another for alcoholics. Dr. Joseph said he feels especially gratified that he has been able to obtain the services of a native Kingstonian, Dr. Dorothy Baker, a diplomate of the American Board of Child Psychiatry, who has six child psychologists working in her group.

"One-third of the caseload involves children," Dr. Joseph said, adding that it is very important to develop work in this area. Presently 350 children are receiving the services of the clinic. He also told of the six-month-old County Action Committee with representatives from all walks of life dealing

Dr. Suggests 'Satellites'

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — With the primary thrust of the Ulster County Mental Health Department on "accessibility," Director Dr. George Joseph has recommended to the County Legislature their consideration of two satellite mental health clinics and day hospitals in addition to the mental health facility to be built on the grounds of Benedictine Hospital. Dr. Joseph has suggested that instead of building one main facility at a cost in excess of $1 million, the primary center be constructed on a small scale at a cost of about $600,000 and that the two satellites be established in Ellenville and New Paltz at a cost in the neighborhood of about $200,000 each.

Citing the fact that mainly Kingston and Woodstock residents afford themselves of the services of the present Kingston facility at the Tumor Clinic Building, Dr. Joseph said that persons in need of mental health services throughout other parts of the county find it difficult to find time and transportation to get to Kingston.

Therefore, he suggests that by opening satellites, people in the Ellenville and New Paltz areas would find the services more readily accessible enabling them to come in after their work hours or avail themselves of the day hospital. It would also provide for follow-up and avoidance of hospitalization. The selection of the New Paltz and Ellenville sites was arrived at after studying statistics concerning the greatest need for mental health care in the county, he said.

Dr. Joseph pointed out that many other counties in the state have already built large mental health centers and have subsequently found that people in the outlying areas have failed to avail themselves of the services because of the travel distance involved. "We can learn by the other counties' mistakes," he said.

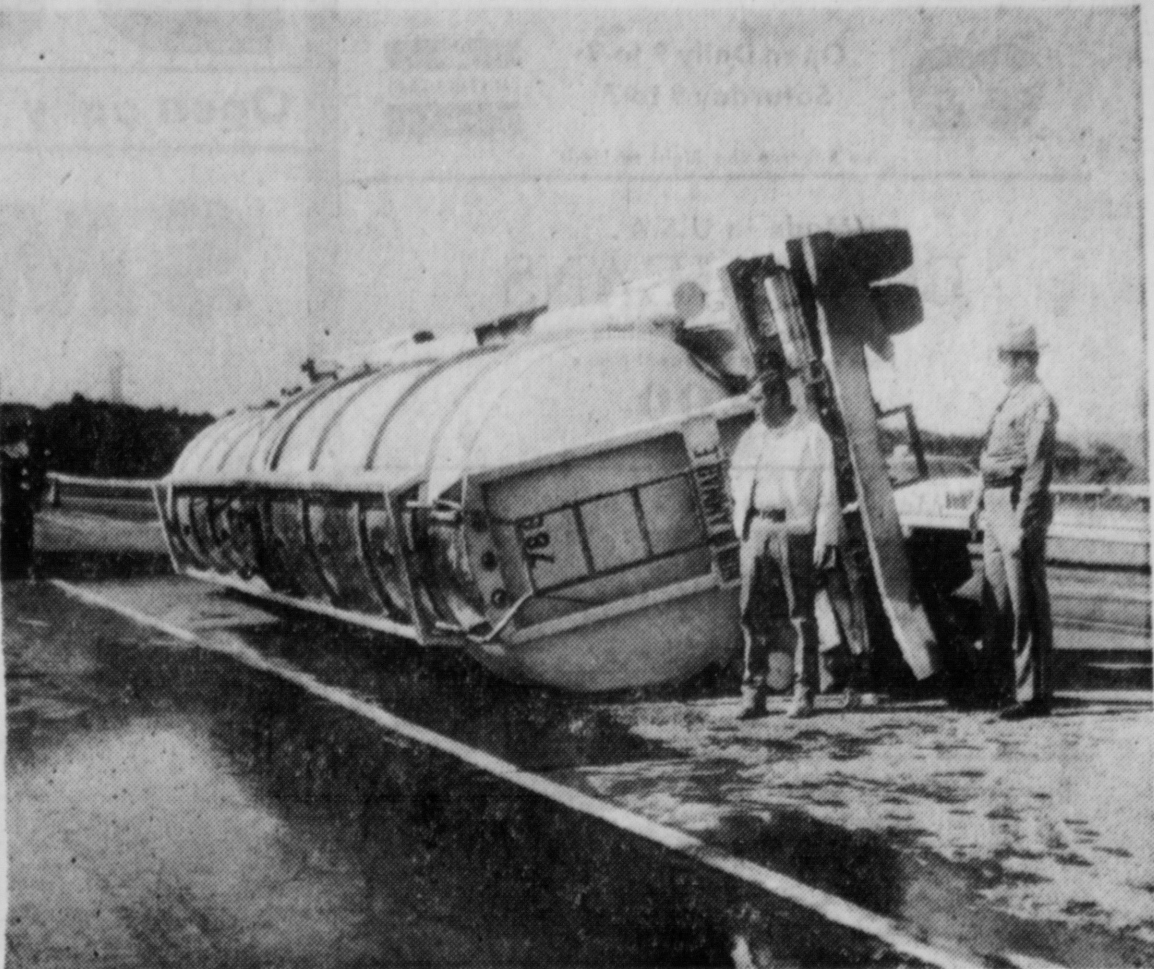

The director suggests that perhaps a "home" in Ellenville and in New Paltz would provide an apt environment for a mental health center rather than another type of building. The psychiatrist feels the Kingston facility is a "must," however, explaining the need for additional room for administrative offices, the day hospital and a clinic. It would also serve as a consulting agency for the satellites, and be in close proximity to the new Mental Health facilities at Benedictine Hospital.

Reviewing the work of the Mental Health Department over the past two years, Dr. Joseph said he is extremely pleased with what he calls a well organized staff structure and the fact that the agency has attracted so many well qualified professionals willing to work full-time thereby reducing the necessity for many more part-time staff workers. Dr. Joseph said that with one more full-time psychiatrist, bringing the total to four, there will be no more need for part-time psychiatrists.

There presently is one full-time psychologist and several part-time whose basic qualifications include a doctorate. The staff also includes an alcohol abuse coordinator, social workers, mental health aides and occupational therapists. As a result of the increased staff "at no additional cost" the department has been able to establish special units such as one for children and another for alcoholics.

Dr. Joseph said he feels especially gratified that he has been able to obtain the services of a native Kingstonian, Dr. Dorothy Baker, a diplomate of the American Board of Child Psychiatry, who has six child psychologists working in her group. "One-third of the caseload involves children," Dr. Joseph said, adding that it is very important to develop work in this area. Presently 350 children are receiving the services of the clinic. Aftermath of Thruway Fatal

Trooper Robert Houghtaling (R) and Kingston Thruway maintenance foreman Norm Senecal look over wreckage of a tank truck loaded with liquid plastic which overturned on the Thruway south of Kingston early Tuesday after striking and killing Paul Maher, 27, of West Hurley. Police said today they feel Maher "apparently just wandered onto the Thruway for unknown reasons." His missing car was found Tuesday afternoon in a driveway at a Hurley Avenue residence. The occupants of the residence did not know Maher, police said, and there was no evidence of foul play in the incident.

Teachers Picket RV Board Meeting

By CARL GRAHAM

KYSERIKE — About 100 members of the Rondout Valley Teachers Association crowded into the high school library for Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Education after picketing in the parking lot outside.

Donald Lee, RVTA president, said the turnout was to show teacher support for the Professional Advancement Committee (PAC) which serves as the RVTA negotiating team.

Lee said teachers were not satisfied with negotiations to date and noted that a PERB fact finder is due next week. "There are many issues still open," Lee said. "Salary is the top issue but there are others in the interest and well-being of teaching students directly and indirectly."

He said he hoped that negotiations (under way since January) could be ended in the near future "so we can turn from these matters to those of the classroom." His remarks drew sustained applause.

Wayne Kelder, Board of Education president, noted that the district was following procedures outlined under the Taylor Law and had entered fact finding at the teachers' request. "I know your concern," he said. "I hope we can continue to keep negotiations out of the classroom."

Robert Robertaccio, superintendent of schools, complimented teachers for "keeping work going in a professional manner," and said he felt an agreement could be reached.

A man in the audience said the use of the word "professional" showed the board's "arrogant and patronizing manner." "I can readily understand why there are serious difficulties in this school district," he said.

The board voted 6-2 to hold a public referendum on a proposal to sell approximately six acres of the 24.2 acres at the Marletown Elementary School on Route 213 in Stone Ridge. Business Administrator Lee Comeau said the Town of Marletown has asked to purchase up to 9½ acres at the site for a new garage and administration building and has federal revenue sharing funds available. Trustee Kay Wagenfohr cost of the land will be determined by an impartial appraisal. Cost of the referendum will be borne by the town.

Mrs. Wagenfohr said she was against any sale of property. "You never know when you might need it," she said.

Julian Bartle, vice president of the board, said he didn't think that sale of the six acres would affect the district's plans. "You could double the size of the school and still have enough land," he said.

Mrs. Wagenfohr and Mrs. Clara Margaret Booth both voted against the referendum. Thomas Davenport was absent from the nine-member board.

Area Couples Exchange Nuptial Vows Recently

Wolven-Eppard

Miss Linda Rose Wolven of Hurley and James E. Eppard of Lake Katrine were united in marriage at an afternoon garden ceremony on Sunday, Sept. 8 at the Twin Lakes Mountain House, Hurley. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. David Bronson of The Holy Cross Episcopal Church of Kingston. Wedding selections were provided by Mrs. Zena Taylor of Modena.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wolven of Hurley and was given by her parents in marriage. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Eppard of Lake Katrine.

The bride wore an ivory gown of organza over net and taffeta. The bodice was Victorian style with high neckline accented with pink ribbon and flowered lace trim on neckline, waist, and sleeves. The full skirt terminated in a circle train. She wore an ivory picture hat trimmed with flowers and illusion veiling. She carried ivory roses with baby's breath and ivory bow.

Miss Barbara Kelly of Kingston, honor attendant, wore a polyester gown of ivory with pink floral print. The bodice featured a square neckline with lace, puffed sleeves. The skirt was three tiers. She wore a pink picture hat with handmade roses and carried a nosegay with light and dark pink pompons accented with dark pink ribbon.

Attendants were Miss Rose Cogswell, Mrs. Burnetta Winslow, cousin of the bride, and Miss Mary Brand, all of Kingston. The attendants wore gowns and picture hats styled identically to the maid of honor's.

Douglas Durling of Lake Katrine served as best man. Ushers were Guy Fischetti of Woodstock and Michael Berman of Tillson.

The reception was given at the Twin Lakes Mountain House.

(Kay Studio)

A graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1972, the bride is employed at Sears-Roebuck Co. The bridegroom graduated from Kingston High School in 1971 is a self-employed musician.

Mr. and Mrs. Eppard will reside at Saugerties after they return from their wedding trip to Cape Cod.

Walker-Roxby

Miss Susan Marie Walker and Kevin H. Roxby were married Saturday, Sept. 7, at 2 p.m. at St. Joseph's Church, Kingston.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker, 171 Fairview Avenue, Kingston; Mr. Roxby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roxby of Accord.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Msgr. John J. O'Reilly, James Sweeney was organist.

Mr. Walker gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white organza gown designed with a circular flounced hem. Venice lace appliques, Empire bodice with a high ruffled neck and sheer yoke. Her headpiece of Chantilly lace and pearls held a chapel length veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and roses. Wendy Hofstatter of Hurley was maid of honor. Her gown was yellow nylon A-line with Empire waist, long sleeves and high neckline. The bodice and skirt were trimmed with lace. She wore a yellow picture hat with floral ribbon and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and daisies.

Barbara Doyle of Kingston, cousin of the bride, and Leslie Stickle of Branford, Conn., were bridesmaids. Cynthia McDermott, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Their gowns were styled similarly to the maid of honors only in blue, pink and orchid. The flower girl wore a floral ribbon in her hair and carried a white basket of carnations and daisies. The bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of daisies and carnations.

Mark Countryman of Accord, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Robert Walker, brother of the bride, and John Roxby, brother of the bridegroom. Dana Countryman of Cottekill, cousin to the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

A reception was given at the Holiday Inn, Kingston. The bride is employed at Courier-Citizen Company, Kingston, and the bridegroom is employed at the Hercules Powder Co., Port Ewen. After a wedding trip to Lake George, the couple will reside in Kingston.

Garden Club to Hear D & H Canal Historian

An open meeting, to which the public is invited, is being planned by the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens for Wednesday, Sept. 25, at United Methodist Church, Washington Avenue, at 1:30 p.m., according to Mrs. Frank Greco, program chairman.

Donald Martin of New Paltz, Board Member and Educational Chairman of the D & H Canal Historical Society, will be guest speaker. Using slides to illustrate his presentation, Mr. Martin will discuss the Canal's history and its vital importance to residents of the area around the turn of the century. The announcement was made at the first fall meeting of the Garden Society, held recently at the home of Mrs. Henry Breitenback of High Woods.

President Mrs. Gordon Kealey reminded members to bring containers, homemade jams and jellies, pickles or place cards with dried flowers, to the meeting, for the society's donation to the ways and means table at the upcoming Third District Fall Meeting in Albany.

Miss Jane Ziegler reported that seasons such as this are hard on Iris, and that soil should be removed from around the rhizomes after each heavy rain, to avoid rotting.

Mrs. John Whriteron stated that the law to protect endangered plants went into effect Sept. 1, carrying a $25 fine for unauthorized removal of these plants.

Reporting on the Mum Festival Flower Show, to be held on Sunday, Oct. 6th at Seamon Park, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., show chairman, Mrs. Richard Cyr, announced the theme is "Mums - Our Pride," and the show will have five categories - "Call of the Wild," "We Give Thanks," "Mums with Flair," "Woodland Fantasy," and "Tall Oaks from Little Acorns Grow."

During the afternoon's program, "Show and Tell," members exhibited specimens of their summer's garden efforts.

Refreshments were served by the hostess committee, Mrs. William Everts, Mrs. John Washburn, Mrs. May Beckert and Mrs. Harold Kamp.

Mini Flower Show Set for October

The first fall meeting of the Little Gardens Club of Kingston took place Thursday, Sept. 5 at the home of Mrs. Everett S. Landers, Hurley. Co-hostess for the noon meeting was Mrs. Leroy Jones. Mrs. J.J. Carol, president, announced the October 3 meeting at the home of Mrs. John Gill in Hurley will be a Mini Flower Show with the full membership participating.

The program for the day was a Flower Arranging demonstration presented by Mrs. Frank Race and Mrs. Halverson.

Landers. Displays were in the traditional formal manner affording the arranger an opportunity for expression and creativity. Fresh plant material was used in combination with dried and treated plant materials, driftwood and unusual containers.

The next meeting of the Club is planned for Thursday at noon at the home of Mrs. Anteo Marchetti. Members who will be unable to attend should contact Mrs. Dean Kintner or Mrs. Harry Halverson.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM C. PRATT SR. of Old Kings Highway, Stone Ridge, were guests of honor at a party given in celebration of their 40th wedding anniversary. The event took place earlier this month at Krippelbush firehall and was given by their sons and daughters, and Mrs. George (Nancy) Boisvert and Mrs. S. Parker (Shirley) Ballantine. Married September 6, 1934 at the parsonage of Fair Street Reformed Church by the Rev. Frank B. Seeley D.D., their attendants were Miss Louise C. Englebrecht and Kenneth O. Pratt of Kingston, now deceased. Many relatives and friends from Saugerties, Kingston, Rosendale, Woodstock, High Falls, New Jersey and Stone Ridge attended the gala. Organ music was provided by Wendell Downs of Cottekill. Vocalist was Harry Wilkane. A special program was prepared by Mrs. Donald (Marilyn) DeGraw of High Falls. (Freeman photo by Carey)

We asked Bonnie Stanley of San Francisco about Naturalizer Shoes.

She said:

"There isn't any brand that fits like Naturalizer."

Mrs. Stanley also said: "I have worn Naturalizers for a long time and I've known by experience that Naturalizer will provide the comfort I need plus give me the styling I like to have. They're durable as well as fashionable . . . they really do hold up."

We couldn't have said it better ourselves. Naturalizer, the shoe with the beautiful fit.

SAUGERTIES JAYNEES are busy planning various fund raising projects for the year. One project, a day-long event planned for Saturday, Sept. 28, will benefit the organization's Scholarship Fund. Meeting to discuss details recently were (L-R) Meredith Hughes, Donna Heidenreich, chairman of the sale, and Anne Abramovich. A large variety of items will be made available to the public. The benefit sale will be held at 19 Redwood Road, Barclay Heights, Saugerties. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Homemade Foods to Be Featured At YMCA Arts and Crafts Show

Members of the Newburgh YWCA are busy pickling, preserving and baking in preparation for the Third Annual YWCA Arts and Crafts Show on September 28th at Steward Airport, Hangar E.

Homemade jams and jellies, baked goods and so forth will be featured at a table at the forthcoming show, which is an annual fund-raising event for the Newburgh YW. According to Lucille Connelly, chairperson of the Show, the Craft Show committee hopes to raise at least $5000 for the YW renovation fund.

In addition to the 150 artists and craftsmen from New York and surrounding states that are expected to participate, Mrs. Connelly says that the Show will also include restaurant facilities staffed by Y-Teen members, a miscellaneous table, a children's bargain table and a booth featuring dried flowers and bulbs for fall planting.

Mrs. Connelly urges the public to come to the Show which will be held rain or shine and take advantage of the opportunity not only to spend an enjoyable day but also to help the YWCA continue its service to the community.

Doctor's Bedside Manner Includes Snarling

DEAR ABBY: I took my little girl to the doctor for her annual checkup. We were called into the examination room, and as soon as she saw the doctor coming toward her in his white coat, she began to cry. When he touched her, she started to squirm on the table and cry even harder because she was frightened.

The doctor very gruffly said, "Who needs this," and stomped out of the room.

A few minutes later, he came back and in a very nasty tone, said to me, "Take her home, and don't bring her back unless she is really sick!"

I thought doctors were supposed to be patient. What can I do about him?

A MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Most doctors try their best to calm and reassure frightened children. Perhaps your doctor was having a bad day, but if that's his usual manner, he is guilty of unprofessional conduct and deserved a reprimand from his county medical society. Mail this column to him. I think it will help him.

DEAR ABBY: I am 19, going to college and work part-time in a department store. There is a guy who works here who is very good-looking. He's 31 and married. He has made advances to me in the stockroom in the back of the store. I really am attracted to him, but the fact that he is married stops me from going out with him. (He's asked me.)

Please advise me. I'm weakening.

KNOWS THE SCORE
DEAR KNOWS: Tell good-looking to get lost. So far, the score is no hits, no runs,

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

no errors. And if you're smart, you'll keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: I have had a reasonably happy marriage to a man who has come up from the ranks to become an executive with a large company. Now, after 36 years, he told me recently that I have never learned how to be an executive's wife.

He is nearly 60 and has been an executive with this company for over 20 years.

My creed has always been to be myself, and as long as I acted like a lady, which I am, I thought that should be sufficient. According to my husband, it was not enough. Where have I failed?

WORSE HALF

DEAR HALF: In addition to being a lady, have you always reciprocated social invitations promptly? Have you graciously initiated a social contact at your husband's suggestion? After having been entertained, do you promptly send a written note of thanks? Do you refrain from gossiping about people whether they're associated with your husband in business or not? If you have had time to devote to your church and/or community activities, have you done so?

If you can answer yes to all these questions, you qualify as an asset to your husband, whether he's an executive or not.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

..... On Letting Off Steam

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — If at the end of a frustrating day you feel like packing up and disappearing, don't let those few bruises get to you.

Some anxiety, frustration, pressure and tension won't hurt you. But when the pressure mounts to where you feel you can't handle it any longer, realize that you can switch on your interior cooling system.

Dr. Abraham Lurie, director of social work services at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center in New Hyde Park, N.Y., outlined some of them.

"Some people appear to function better with the tensions of urban living. Creativity seems to increase. Remember there are difficulties in every job. There is no such thing as an idyllic condition."

If pressures seem at the bursting point, first try self-examination. What is causing the tension? The job? Family relationships? Social maladjustment? Some inner irritant?

If self-analysis doesn't work within a reasonable time, then consider professional counseling, Lurie said. Don't go on the tranquilizer or alcohol path as an out.

The most common causes of pressures are marital problems, child rearing, economic insecurity, sexual hangups, the in-laws, too many people in big cities, our affluent society showing us things we want and can't have, and increased competition with which some persons can't cope.

Lurie said if you can identify the cause or causes of stress, put the matter in perspective. Decide how significant it is to you in the context of your life.

If the problem stems from an external situation, try to break it into component parts. This will help you isolate the major irritant so that you can work to effect change.

If this fails to ease tension, give serious consideration to a major permanent change — for example, a new job, a new type of work.

"Or a new mate?" I asked. "Some must be trying," he said. "The divorce rate is getting higher and higher."

"People are taking a hard look at what they're getting out of life," he said. "We find more and more changing careers in their middle years."

Lurie, 56, holds masters degrees from Columbia and Ohio State Universities and a doctorate from New York University. He also is a clinical professor at Adelphi University.

I asked whether he was happy in his job. Certainly not always, he said with a laugh. "I wanted to quit yesterday."

Tried and True Hints . . . On Campus or Off

Dear Heloise:

You asked for hints for kids going away to college. I've put two through, and found these tips very helpful.

When you're buying pajamas, nighties, underclothes, towels, robes and anything else that is washable, always buy pastel shades so everything can be washed together in one laundry load. You have no idea, unless you have been there, how college students begrudge that quarter they have to put in the machine.

If they do have some dark things that are washable, they can save them until they have a load, or team up with a classmate and share the machine AND the quarter and wash just one load. (Washable red is a good color to keep away from—it always fades.)

An over-door hanger to provide extra hanging convenience for coats and outerwear is a must. No college student ever has enough closet space!

And don't forget those large metal boxes for their sweaters and things that get folded. The boxes can be kept under their beds.

Just sign me . . . "Right On"

I did, and you are, love. You all's hints are wonderful. Keep 'em coming.

LETTER OF LOVE

Dear Heloise:

I love all the wonderful things you do to make being a "lady of the home" so much easier.

I don't like the word housewife . . . I'm not married to the "house"!

Dear Heloise:

I found a good way to grate the rinds of fruits such as lemons. Under my upright hand grater I put a paper plate.

I used to have so much trouble using one of my regular china or old stoneware ones, as the grater would slip and scratch the plate.

Now I buy the cheap paper plates, use one each time I grate something, and then throw it away.

When you buy them on sale, they are very inexpensive, well worth not scratching your good plates. The paper seems to prevent the grater from slipping, and it folds up to scoop the grated rind into the bowl much easier.

Mrs. K.L. Nelson

THIS COLUMN is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Upcoming Activities Are Announced

Rummage Sale

A rummage sale is planned at Fair Street Reformed Church, Kingston, on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 25-26. Hours will be Wednesday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Thursday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Power Boat Auxiliary
The Ladies Auxiliary of Kingston Power Boat Association will meet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Members are reminded to bring refreshments.

Legion Auxiliary
Ulster County Committee, American Legion Auxiliary, will hold its Fall Conference Friday in Albany. A meeting is planned for Monday, Sept. 23 at 8 p.m. at Marblotown Post No. 1512, Stone Ridge. Election of county chairmen will take place at this meeting.

First Fall Meeting
The Ladies of United Commercial Travelers of America, Auxiliary No. 130, Kingston, will hold their first man, concerning the awards to be made by the Supreme Auxiliary. To qualify, members must make increased efforts to secure new members.

All officers and members are urged to attend. Officers unable to be present are requested to notify Mrs. Samuel Feldman, senior counselor.

MD Benefits

A carnival for Muscular Dystrophy benefit was held September 14 at the home of Mary Ellen Stahl in Olivebridge. Proceeds amounted to $117.79.

Helpers included Korin Plawsky, Kathy Carey, Seth Plawsky, Dana Plawsky, Rita Carey, Jeannie Stahl, Leanne Avery, Brigitte Bergeron, Darlene Carl and Robin Lickers.

Election Being Planned

An election of district officers will be held at the 1974 fall meeting of the Third District Garden Clubs of the Federated Garden Clubs of New York State, Inc. to be held at the Silo Restaurant (Ramada Inn), Western Avenue, (Rte. 20), Albany, on October 3rd.

The slate as presented by Mrs. D. K. Ormsbee, chairman of the nominating committee, is director, Mrs. Everett F. Bennett; Dutchess County; first assistant director, Mrs. Clyde Deavers, Ulster County; second assistant director, Mrs. John Maybee, Albany County; recording secretary, Mrs. Sidney Vunck, Albany County; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Paul Holmberg, Ulster County; treasurer, Mrs. William Waldele, Ulster County; assistant treasurer, Mrs. George Greer, Greene County.

Garden club presidents are asked to send the names of delegates and alternates to Mrs. Vunck by September 23, or a letter of accreditation which has been signed by the club president may be presented to the Credentials Chairman on the day of the meeting. A club shall be entitled to one delegate and one alternate for each 50 or fraction thereof of members.

All district officers and chairmen of district standing committees, past directors of the district and delegates or alternates from each of the member clubs are eligible to vote.

Absentee ballots may be obtained from Mrs. Sidney Vunck, 2191 New Scotland Road, Slingerlands.

Three-Act Comedy Now at Showboat

The Driftwood Floating Theatre SHOWBOAT, now at the Broadway Landing in Kingston, presents a comedy in three acts, "The Family Upstairs," now through Sept. 29.

Featured in this comedy of home life is Edward C. Furbush, captain of the Driftwood SHOWBOAT.

Curtain time Tuesday through Saturday is 8:30 p. m.; Sunday afternoons at 5:30.

Children under 12, when accompanied by adults, are welcomed aboard at half-price, except Friday and Saturday.

Information and reservations may be had by contacting the SHOWBOAT boxoffice.

New Paltz Legion Auxiliary Launches Fall Season; Conference Friday

A large delegation of members attended the opening fall session of American Legion of New Paltz, Sullivan-Shafer Unit No. 176. Both Legion members and the Auxiliary were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Coats, 22 Sunset Ridge, New Paltz, on Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Mrs. Marion H. Deyo, Auxiliary president, reminded members of the Third District Fall Conference in Albany on Friday. A fund-raising yard sale is being planned for October 19 at the home of Mrs. Elting Clearwater, 3 Harrington Street, New Paltz.

Betty Crocker and other valuable coupons are still being collected by Auxiliary members.

Although meetings are suspended during July and August, the organization continues to work on its numerous projects, and several committee reports were submitted.

The next meeting will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Liuni, Plutarch Road, New Paltz, when Miss Patricia Ralph, Girls State delegate, will render her report.

Kingston Resident Has 75th Birthday

A party was given recently in honor of the 75th birthday of Mrs. Elizabeth Tremper of Colonial Gardens. The event took place at her daughters' home in Hyde Park and was hosted by her four children and their spouses: Mr. and Mrs. Michael Glavich, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brodhead, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tremper, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tremper.

Also attending were Mrs. Tremper's 10 grandchildren, a great grandchild, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winchell, Mrs. John R. Tremper, Mrs. Bessie Lynn, Mrs. Dorothy Brodhead, and Harry Emick.

Get a headstart in your new town.

Palmer Waited for Question

ON THE SCENE — Baltimore Orioles' Jim Palmer arrives in New York Tuesday to do battle with the New York Yankees in the hot American pennant race. He later blanked the Yanks 4-0 to cut their AL East lead to 1½ games over Birds. (UPI)

Don't Work Those Cards In Overtime

Don't let the St. Louis Cardinals work on overtime. They make you pay dearly for it.

The Cardinals, who have been practically unbeatable in extra inning games this season, made it 12 victories in 15 extra inning games Tuesday night when they defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 in 13 innings to stretch their National League East Division lead to 2½ games.

The success of the Cardinals' in extra innings is due primarily to the relief pitching of Al Hrabosky, who has allowed only three hits and struck out 21 in his last 15 innings. The 25-year-old left-hander was at his best again Tuesday night when he held the Pirates hitless for four innings while gaining his seventh win in eight decisions.

Lou Brock won the game with his specialty in the 13th when he singled, stole second for his 109th theft of the year, moved to third on a sacrifice and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ted Simmons.

"I was fatigued in the 13th, but I was able to read his (Pirates' pitcher Jerry Reuss') body movements and get a good jump," said Brock. "Even if they had pitched out, they wouldn't have gotten me. My legs aren't strong at this point in the season, but we've got a trainer who massages them for me every day. The big thing is that I don't have any cuts or bruises on my legs around my knees like Maury (Willis) did."

Hrabosky, who has given up only one earned run in his last 41 1/3 innings of relief, said the success of the Cardinals in extra innings this season was due to one thing—togetherness.

"It's the whole attitude on this team. We always felt we had the best club, but we're a super close-knit group—on and off the field," said Hrabosky.

Foreman Biding His Time

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — You can cut George Foreman, but you still can't push the heavyweight champion around.

"We'll fight when he's healthy and not before," said Foreman's trainer, Dick Sadler, whose adamant posture now raises the most serious of several obstacles to the scheduled fight between Foreman and Muhammad Ali.

The government of Zaire regretfully announced Tuesday the postponement of its show of shows, the title fight between Foreman and Ali, from Sept. 25 to Oct. 23 because of the deep one-inch gash the heavyweight champion suffered over his right eye Monday.

But, with the heavyweight championship crown hanging in the balance, Sadler was not committing himself to a particular date, just a healthy George Foreman.

"Don't put too much confidence in that Oct. 23 date," Sadler told a news conference here Tuesday, adding that it was "too early to say" when his fighter would be ready. "We hope it can be around the 23rd or the 30th" of October, but he later told reporters "it could be two (months)," which would push back the fight to the end of November.

"It will take three or four days to tell if there's any infection or how it's healing because the wound has to heal from inside. In the States, you know, you can't box for 30 days after a cut."

The new date for Zaire's boxing spectacular, sporting the highest ring price tag ever — $30 million — was announced by the African nation's main fight official, Bula Mandungu. He said Sadler's reluctance to flatly accept the new date was understandable, but added he was sure the fight would be held on Oct. 23.

Mandungu's government has

NEW YORK (AP) — The re-players in the game's history to the score and pinch-hitter Bob losses. Jim Perry went the porters gathered awkwardly accumulate 3,000 during his Hansen singled in the decisive distance for the Indians and is around Jim Palmer and there was an uncomfortable silence. What do you say to a pitcher who has been a 20-game winner the last four seasons but sports only a 7-12 mark one year after winning the Cy Young Award?

Palmer was in a jovial mood though, since he had just hurled the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-0 seven-hit triumph over the New York Yankees and he sensed the situation.

"Isn't anybody going to ask a question?" He said with a grin. Then he proceeded to interview himself.

"How do you feel, Jim?" "Oh, better than last night, or last Thursday, or whenever it was."

That broke the tension and the talk quickly turned to the race in the American League's East Division. The Orioles trail the Yankees by 1½ games, with the Boston Red Sox 3½ out.

"The Yankees are still in the driver's seat," Palmer said. "But if we win two of three here, or three in a row, it's obvious the complexion of the race will change. If we win the next game it will have to shift the pressure to them."

"I feel like we need to win one of these three games," countered Yankee Manager Bill Virdon. "And we can make it awfully tough on them if we win two."

For those who believe in omens, the Orioles have won the opening game of each of their six series with the Yankees this season. The Yanks have bounced back to win seven of the other 10 meetings.

Tonight it's Baltimore's Mike Cuellar, 19-10, against New York's Pat Dobson, 16-14. But then Palmer wondered whether there was really any pressure at all.

"The way my year's been going, I didn't really think this was a pressure game," said the all right-hander who spent almost two months of the summer on the disabled list with a sore elbow.

"I've pitched very well since I've been back, but I haven't gotten a lot of runs. I pitched as well tonight as I did against the Yankees in Baltimore last Thursday (a 3-0 loss) but I didn't get any runs then."

He didn't get any until the seventh inning this time. Elrod Hendricks doubled with one out, took third on Mark Balanger's bunt single when loser Doc Medich was slow covering first, and scored on Al Bumbry's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth, Rich Coggins singled, Medich nicked Tommy Davis with a pitch and Blair blasted a three-run homer off Yankee ace Sparky Lyle.

Besides Blair's home run, the center fielder made the defensive play of the game in the fifth inning when he hauled in Chris Chambliss' towering drive with his back to the plate near the wall.

"I don't know if I'm the best center fielder in baseball," he said modestly. "But I think I'm among the best."

That brought a roar from Manager Earl Weaver.

"I've never heard him say anything except that he's the best," Weaver said. "If he said anything else, he's kidding you."

General Manager Frank Cashen was an interested listener.

"Blair always claims he's the best when contract time rolls around," he said.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit beat the fading Boston Red Sox 5-3; Milwaukee shaded Cleveland 3-2 and Minnesota whipped Chicago 8-0.

Tigers 5 Red Sox 3

The Red Sox continued to drift out of the Eastern race when they lost their third straight game and 17th in 23.

Joe Coleman went seven innings for his 13th win, with relief help from John Hiller, while Bill Lee suffered his 13th defeat for the Red Sox. Leon

Roberts' two-run single in the sixth inning gave the Tigers a 4-3 lead. Al Kaline had one hit for the Tigers and now needs seven more to become the 12th player in the game's history to the score and pinch-hitter Bob losses. Jim Perry went the run in the seventh inning to now 15-12. Oscar Gamble gave Milwaukee's Jim Colborn homered for the Indians.

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The U.S. Yacht Courageous was the toast of the American yachting world today.

In what seemed an almost effortless test, she had wiped out a brash challenge by Australia's Southern Cross to win the America's Cup, held by the United States for 123 years and considered the emblem of international yachting supremacy.

Courageous, a better boat with a better crew, scored four straight wins in the 22nd challenge for the Cup, the most decisive of which came Tuesday when she left Southern Cross trailing behind at every turn on the six-leg, 24.3-mile course on Rhode Island Sound.

The Americans crossed the finish line seven minutes, 19 seconds ahead of the struggling Australians, broke out the champagne already icing in the boat's hold—and let pandemonium break loose.

Whistles tooted, sirens shrieked and horns blared as skipper Ted Hood brought his boat across the line to the cannon's boom in this first battle between aluminum hull 12 meter boats. His crew of 10 clambered for the cockpit to grab the hand of the Marblehead, Mass., sailmaker who had made his opponents from down under look like a bunch of weekend sailors.

Members of the Courageous Syndicate and the New York Yacht Club, which had chosen the boat from among four aspiring defenders after trials this summer, clambered aboard to join the celebration.

Al Kaline Needs '7'

BOSTON (AP) — Pressure is just another word as far as Kaline is concerned. He showed little effect when he joined the Detroit Tigers at 18 and now, 22 years later, he shows even less while zeroing in on his 3,000th major league hit.

"I don't feel any pressure as yet because there still are enough games left and I have a little leeway," Kaline said

Tuesday night after his 2,993rd hit sparked a sixth inning rally which lifted the Tigers to a 5-3 victory over the faltering Boston Red Sox.

"If I needed 12 hits in the last 14 games, maybe there would be a little pressure," he finally admitted. "This way, though, all I need is seven hits in 14 games. That shouldn't be too difficult."

After playing his entire professional career for Detroit, the 39-year-old Kaline said he would like to become the 12th player in major league history to get 3,000 hits and he wants to do it before hometown fans.

However, he is shooting for his hits in every game.

"Sure, it would be nice to get No. 3,000 at home, but I want to get it as quickly as I can.

We're on a nine-game trip now before returning to Detroit and I'm trying my best."

"Too many things can happen in this game. My only fear now is the chance of getting hurt. Why I could even get hit by a truck, or something. I don't want that to happen."

Whatever does happen, Kaline wants to reach his goal before he hangs up his spikes as a player.

"I'll quit after this season if I get it, even though I feel real good," he said. "If I don't do it this year, I'll definitely be back next season, at least until I get the big one. There shouldn't be any sweat, though."

As Courageous and her come here for the series and doesn't pay to bet against the armada of admirers headed for her pier in Newport Shipyard, thousands of persons in automobiles on shore tooted their horns and, at the dock itself, it was another round of backslapping, handshaking and tears of joy.

At a news conference later, the short, stocky Alan Bond, who saw a four-year, $9 million effort go down the drain in this series, had this to say about his defeat:

"I don't really think it was the men who were better — they sailed tremendously well — but the technology that was better, their boat was better. We have to concede they had a slightly faster boat."

He placed some of the blame, too, on the location — in a foreign country — and the experience of more than 100 years that the "valiant defenders" have had in cup racing. If sports bring us closer together, then we've achieved something."

Bob McCullough, manager of the Courageous syndicate, responded to Bond and said he agreed "We've done an awful lot," if the sport had helped bring the world together.

"I think that you fellows made just one big mistake to begin with," McCullough said. "You put on such an effort. You went at it hammer and tongs to such a degree that you just scared the hell out of us and I think we got to be a lot better than we ever thought we were going to be or ever had to be."

Monday's race was a walkaway for Courageous after starting Helmsman Connor got her away to a 20-second lead at the start with some foxy maneuvering and then turned the wheel over to Hood.

As the Southern Cross docked, skipper Jim Hardy said the loss was "quite a disappointment, not just for Jim Hardy but for the whole Southern Cross team."

Advice is cheap but if the Kingston Bowling Association, the KWBA and John Ferraro are willing to listen, we have a suggestion that might terminate the squabbling over tournament dates.

You know the background. Since their origins, the KBA and KWBA have conducted their annual championship tournaments in either February or March. The national trend in recent years, however, has gravitated toward April and May with some inducements by the proprietors in the form of reduced rates. The associations are bucking the trend.

Without belaboring the background of the local dispute, may we suggest that a week be set aside each year in the Christmas to New Year's period for just tournament bowling, except for occasional periods dictated by the size of the entries.

We throw this out as a suggestion, not a panacea to solve the current dispute between the proprietors and the KBA. The KWBA, we understand, may resolve its differences with the lanes by some other method. But, we repeat, this is just a rumor.

These bureaucrats in Washington are avoiding the word recession or depression like the plague, but something is happening to bowling leagues. Whatever name you call it, by the fact remains that a few leagues have not re-organized and others have had difficulty in filling their rosters.

For example, Stan Cable, the secretary of the Federation Church league, reports that his league is still two bowlers short for the 1974-75 season. It's a 8:30 p.m. Thursday league at Mid-City.

The real surprise is the No-Can-Do, the oldest league in the city from the standpoint of continuous years of bowling—34 to be exact. The league has gone from five-man to four-man rosters for the first time.

Eleven members of the Kingston Bowling Association's Board of Directors were among the capacity crowd of 850 that filled the Polish Community Center in Albany last Saturday night to attend the inaugural dinner of the 1974-75 American Bowling Congress president Joseph Rebolotto of Albany.

Rebolotto, a long-time friend and adviser of the KBA, is the 61st ABC president and the 15th to come from New York State. The retired Albany School principal is also currently serving in the dual role of secretary-treasurer of the Albany Bowling Association. A heart attack suffered by Rebolotto's predecessor, Richard Winkelman, forced Joe to handle much of the president's duties last season while also holding the office of first vice president.

In conjunction with the Rebolotto testimonial, Gov. Malcolm Wilson released a proclamation designating September as Bowlers Month in New York State. The governor did not attend the dinner. Rebolotto was installed by ABC Executive Secretary-Treasurer Albert R. Matzelle.

The Kingston delegation was headed by Addison (Ad) Jones, variously known as Mr. Bowling and The Bowling Milkman. Jones is a past president of the KBA and the New York State Bowling Association.

Others in the group were KEA president John Spader, Secretary-Treasurer Joe Mannello, past presidents Donald Christiana, William Mohr, Carlo Perry, Emilio Primo, Albert Sonnenberg, Harold Stewart and vice president Gerald Smith. John Spada and his son also attended.

There's a "hot line" in American Bowling Congress headquarters in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and, as far as the Rules Department members are concerned, it keeps hot most of the time. For the Rules Staff, there is always plenty of business.

Rules manager Roger Tessman heads a staff of five persons or troubleshooters. With four and a half million bowlers in more than 100,000 leagues competing each week in 3,000 local associations across the country, you have to expect complications.

Questions pour into ABC headquarters with regularity . . . by mail, telephone, by telegram. One persistent bowler, Tessman pointed out, flew to ABC headquarters from the West Coast to settle a league issue. At the beginning of each season the volume of mail increases. And at times, various members of the staff spend an entire day answering the telephone.

General league problems account for the bulk of business, questions arising within the associations, plus tournament disputes and various disqualifications.

If an officer absconds with his league's funds, a bowler withdraws from a league while owing fees, or submits a false average or bowls under an assumed name, he's likely to come up in a suspension hearing. The Rules department handles preparations for the Legal committee which makes final decisions in all cases.

"We do see the dark side of the bowling game," Tessman says, "but we keep reminding ourselves that the huge majority of bowlers do a fine job in organizing which is often a rather complex activity."

In the meantime, the Rules "hot line" is open.

Woodstock Ties La Lima's In Sunday SPL Playoffs

KINGSTON A seventh inning error by Greco shortstop John Cook Jr. opened the floodgates for Ruby, LaLima's Barber Shop a run for its money in the Sunday Slow Pitch League playoffs.

The best of five game series is even at a game apiece after Woodstock rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fifth to take Game Two, 9-8. LaLima's managed to squeak out the opener, 6-5.

In the other bracket, Greco Motors has jumped out to a 2-0 lead with 9-8 and 15-0 victories. LaLima's had been beaten only once—by forfeit—so the Woodstock victory was a shocker. Joe Fay hit a solo homer and Bret Naccarato singled in two runs after Joe Williams and Frank Stokes had reached safely to power the Meatmen to the triumph in the decisive fifth inning.

Dave Letersky had four hits for the winners. LaLima's got a homer from Joe Brown and three hits each from Dickie Burris and Butch Bassett.

In the opener of the series, LaLima's needed a three-run sixth to rally for the win. Mark Toney's three hits pace the pennant winners. Bret Naccarato doubled in three runs for Woodstock.

Oklahoma State Big Test for Arkansas

NEW YORK (AP) — Arkansas' sturdy young defense, which stifled Southern Cal's offense last week and held the Trojans to one touchdown on a kickoff return, has its work cut out for it again Saturday.

The Razorbacks meet Oklahoma State, a Big Eight team which rolled up 59 points against Wichita State.

The Razorbacks made The Associated Press Top Ten by upsetting Southern Cal but their real goal is the Southwest Conference title, which seems to have become Texas' permanent possession.

This would be a prime spot for an upset pick, except that Oklahoma State surprised the Porkers 38-6 a year ago . . . Arkansas 17-10.

Last week's score was 43 right, 15 wrong for a percentage of .741 The Upset Special, Maryland over Alabama, just missed. "Bama holding on 21-16. The season mark is 57-191 for .750.

Here's this week's upset special: Indiana 21, Arizona 20. But don't bet on it.

Notre Dame 42, Northwestern

14: Ara Parseghian's 8-6 is no place for a Horned Frog, close loss to Alabama but Jerry Tennessee 28. Kansas 27 to Southern Cal. That was a pretty good score. The game was switched to the last year, too. But afternoon for regional TV . . . The Panthers squeaked past which means Miami can get Florida State last week and home earlier. Isn't that nice? might be caught looking ahead. Nicer than the Cougars will be.

Ohio State 56, Oregon State 7: This was the week Oregon State was to have played Wake Forest. But the Deacons canceled out and Oregon State threw in the Buckeyes . . . and the towel.

Nebraska 35 Wisconsin 14: Badgers almost pulled it off last year losing 20-16. Cornhuskers have long memories . . . and a lot of elephants in red uniforms.

Alabama 49 Southern Mississippi 0: P.W. "Bear" Bryant vs. P.W. "Bear" Underwood, who'll have to grin and bear it.

Michigan 30 Colorado 15: Quarterback Dennis Franklin returns to the Michigan lineup after a bout with a bug. Louisiana State 24. Texas A&M 14: The Veer against the Wishbone.

Penn State 38, Navy 14: Navy's George Welsh used to coach on Joe Paterno's staff. Texas 50, Wyoming 0: Wyoming has the Cowboys, but Texas has the horses.

Arizona State 49, Texas Christian 7: Sun Devil country

UCLA 28, Iowa 12: How'd you like to open with Michigan, up. UCLA, Penn State and South ern Cal? Iowa does.

Maryland 21, Florida 14: through the air, with Fritts Terps could be down after that doing the linebacking.

The World Football League, offering spots to veterans recently dropped by the National Football League, returns to action tonight with a cast of familiar players in different uniforms.

"I don't look at playing in the World Football League as a comedown," said Leroy Kelly, the fourth leading ground gain er in NFL history, after being signed Tuesday by the Chicago Fire.

"What brings me to Chicago? Money, dough," said Kelly. "The Mean Green, my man, is where it is all at."

A Fire spokesman said Kelly, cut last week by the NFL Oak land Raiders after a long career with the Cleveland Browns, had an outside shot at starting against the visiting al Football League, returns to Memphis Southern.

In other WFL games tonight, New York is at the Hawaiians, Detroit at Southern California

Philadelphia at Florida and Portland at Jacksonville. Houston at Birmingham is Thursday's national TV game.

"We have to keep our chins up and keep fighting, and this will be a real tough one," said Fire coach Jim Spavital about the Fire.

The Fire, 7-4, has dropped two games in a row on last minute defeats. The Southmen, have seven consecutive victories.

Against New York, 7-4, the Hawaiians, 3-8, plan to start quarterback Ed Hargett, who began the season with the NFL Houston Oilers. He threw two touchdowns last week for the Oilers.

Newly sold Jacksonville, 4-7, use two former New York Giants stop ex-NFL passer Pete Beatty — quarterback hard off to a slow start last week, running only three plays for the Storm.

The Honolulu club might also have to figure out how to use two former New York Giants stop ex-NFL passer Pete Beatty — quarterback hard off to a slow start last week, running only three plays for the Storm.

Owner Fran Monaco sold contolling interest in the Sharks — reportedly in a $2.5 million deal — to a group headed by Wide receiver Dick Witcher New Yorker William Pease. But he said the team will finish signed by the Sun, for instance, the year in Jacksonville.

Montgomery Ward will replace this battery at no cost to the original owner if it fails to accept and hold a charge in non-commercial passenger car use during the Free Replacement Period shown:

TOTAL GUARANTEE PERIOD: 60 48 42 36 24 18 Mos.

FREE REPLACEMENT PERIOD: 24 16 12 9 6 3 Mos.

After this period, to the end of the guarantee period, Montgomery Ward will replace the battery, charging only a prorated amount for the time since purchase, based on the current regular selling price less trade-in. Batteries in commercial use are guaranteed on a similar basis for half of the specified periods. Commercial use is defined as use in any vehicle for other than family or personal use.

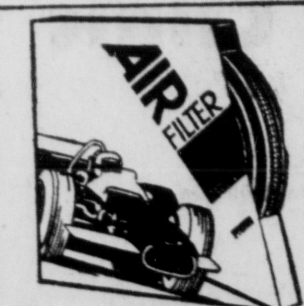

For service under this guarantee, return battery with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

Trifecta Pays $2,197 at MR

Lucky Eblis closed in the stretch to score by a neck over Neveraire and King Bill in Monticello Raceway's Tuesday Night Pace Feature in 2:05.2. Driven by Don Pierce, the four year old posted his second straight by nailing pace-setting Neveraire at the wire to return $6.00, $3.00, $3.40.

The third race Trifecta returned a hefty $2,197.50 when Red Tulip was driven home to a $12.20 win by Jacques DuPuis.

Manzi drove Idol Barman, $7.40, in the first half. Davids Joan was reined to an $8.20 win in the second by John Gilmour.

Players of Week

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Kent State University tailback Larry Poole and KSU linebacker Bob Miller Tuesday were named the Mid-American Conference players of the week for their performances in the unbeaten Golden Flashes' 20-14 win over Syracuse last Saturday.

Poole gained 191 yards on 30 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Kent State victory, which gave the Flashes with 16 tackles, including eight individual efforts.

ABC CHAMPION: Bob Hart of Detroit displays sign with this towering 2087 which won the 1974 all-events championship in the American Bowling Congress tournament. He rolled 687 in the team event; 702 doubles and 698 singles.

LAKE KATRINE Donna Every has been elected president of the Lowlands Ranch Club. Others named at the September meeting were: Mary VonAhn, vice president; Judy Schussler, treasurer; and Donna Schussler, secretary.

The club has an Open Horse Show scheduled on Sept. 29 at 9 a.m., with George Peters of Schuylerville as the judge. Donna Schussler is in charge of class lists. A Fun Day—a full day of games on horseback—is scheduled Oct. 6 at 9 a.m. Mrs. Judy Schussler is in charge of that event.

Donna Every Heads Lowlands

The Lowlands club which meets on the first Wednesday of each month is accepting applications for membership. Meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. at club house on Katrine Lane. Interested persons may contact Donna Schussler.

UCCC Hosts Soccer Tourney

Ulster County Community College will sponsor an Ulster Soccer Tournament on its campus Saturday starting at 10 a.m. Participants will include Hunter College of New York City and the UCCC team.

Four games will be played, with Ulster hosting Columbia in the first game and N.Y.U. taking on Hunter in the second. Two winners will play for the championship in the afternoon, with the two losers vying for consolation honors.

Coaching the Columbia team is John Renie, holder of the USSF license and a very capable coach who operates a strong technical team. Columbia compiled a great record in the Ivy League the past two seasons.

Fire Signs Kelly

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Fire announced Tuesday that Leroy Kelly, the fourth leading career rusher in the National Football League, has signed and will play against the Memphis Southmen Wednesday night.

Kelly, who played 10 seasons with the Cleveland Browns and in the Pro Bowl six times, gained 7,274 yards in the NFL. He was drafted by the Browns in the eighth round in 1964.

The N.Y.U. coach, Arnoldone Ramirez, is also a holder of a USSF license. His current Violet squad is considered one of the strongest he has ever coached and he has had several outstanding squads.

Ron Yabush, the Hunter College coach, is a former player who is a talented fundamentalist. He brings a high degree of professionalism into this game. Yabush's team is the Ulster campus.

The tournament marks the second appearance of the season for the Senators, who lost to a powerful Keene State (N.H.) team 1-0 in the finals of the Keene State Tournament. UCCC edged Amherst 2-1 to gain the finals.

Coach George Vizvary will introduce his 1974 team in the tournament and it might possibly be the strongest ever assembled on the Ulster campus.

The squad will consist of 14 players including some of the best freshman prospects ever to come on the Stone Ridge campus. The fact that UCCC is able to compete against metropolitan powerhouses like the three teams in the tourney speaks for itself.

"The teams in the tournament are certainly worth watching," said Vizvary. "We'd like to see some new fans and of course, a fine turnout of students."

The late Ayres Bombeck, one of the best players in the Midwest, used to love to tell this story on himself.

Ayres never made an effort to see his opponents' cards, but if they waved them in his face he would not shut his eyes.

Two of those little old ladies were playing against 50-year-old Ayres. They got so excited while bidding a slam that North managed to show the king and three small hearts while there was South flashing the jack-deuce.

The bidding is typical for little old ladies. They tend never to bid a slam without using Blackwood on the way.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Alaskans are the most air-minded people in the world with one out of every eight Alaskans holding a flying license. The World Almanac notes, Alaska's rugged terrain and area, twice as large as Texas, make flying a necessity as a means of travel within the state. Anchorage has one of America's busiest air traffic centers and some 25 per cent of the world's seaplanes are in the area.

Food Reserve Plan Discussed by Ford

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — President Ford said today the United States will increase its food aid to hungry nations and is willing to join in a worldwide effort to establish an international system of food reserves.

He told the 29th session of the United Nations General Assembly that the world's nations must cooperate "on oil, food and inflation" or they may face "disaster."

"A global strategy for food and energy is urgently needed," he declared.

It was Ford's first major foreign policy speech as president. He promised the world's representatives "straight talk."

While he sketched out broad policies in many areas, hunger was the subject on which he was most specific. He promised three steps:

—The United States will "substantially increase" its aid designed to help other countries grow more food on their own.

—Next, to ensure that the survival of millions of our fellow men does not depend upon the vagaries of weather, the United States is prepared to join in a world-wide effort to negotiate, establish and maintain an international system of food reserves. But each nation must determine for itself how it manages its reserves.

—To meet immediate needs, the United States will increase the amount it spends on food shipments to nations in need.

"Thus," the President said, "the United States is striving to help define and contribute to a cooperative global policy to meet man's immediate and long-term need for food."

Details of the food reserve proposal were not spelled out, but Ford said the United States will set forth comprehensive proposals at the World Food conference in Rome in November.

Setting forth four basic foreign policy pledges, Ford said his administration will:

—Pursue a more peaceful, stable and cooperative world.

—Seek out and expand relations with old adversaries.

China was the only example he mentioned. Cuba would also fit.

—Strive to heal the world's "old wounds": Cyprus, the Middle East, Indochina.

—Rededicate the United States to "the search for justice, equality and freedom" in the world.

Kay Released From Captivity

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Civilian pilot Emmett Kay, the last known American prisoner of war in Indochina, emerged tanned, relaxed and smiling from 16 months of captivity today and reported there are no more U.S. POWs left in Laos.

"No, I'm the only one," Kay told newsmen at Vientiane Airport when asked about the status of an estimated 300 Americans still missing in Laos.

A British Embassy airplane flew the 47-year-old pilot from Sam Neua, capital of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, to meet his anxious wife, Flora, in Vietnam.

"I feel very fine," Kay told newsmen on arriving at the airport. "I was treated very, very well."

He was scheduled to fly almost immediately to a U.S. installation in Thailand, switching planes for a flight to the Philippines and a checkup at Clark Air Base, where Vietnam

$82.6 Billion Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate House conferees have approved an $82.6-billion defense appropriations bill, $4.5 billion less than the Pentagon asked for but still more than last year.

The conference report, which still must receive final approval of both houses of Congress, is $3.1 billion more than last year's defense appropriation.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the bill "strikes a fair balance between the requirements of the nation's defense establishment and the need for reduced federal spending to deal with inflation."

Because many defense contracts are for more than one year the $4.5-billion cut is expected to result in an actual spending reduction of only $2.6 billion in the current fiscal year.

McClellan said that the $2.6-billion reduction "should have

SALT Talks Are Continuing

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union went back to the nuclear bargaining table today, with a top American diplomat predicting agreement in 1975 on a sweeping 10-year pact to limit atomic weapons.

Chief U.S. negotiator U. Alexis Johnson and Vladimir S. Semonov, head of the Soviet delegation, scheduled a late morning meeting to resume the second round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks after a six-month recess.

TWO HOSTAGES LEAN OUT OF WINDOW (UPI Telephoto)

Kissinger May Testify Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, cleared earlier this summer of lying to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, may have to testify again, this time on previous testimony about Chile.

The committee voted unanimously Tuesday to investigate CIA operations in Chile, raising the possibility of another set of hearings involving Kissinger and former CIA director Richard Helms.

Helms, now ambassador to Iran, testified last year before the Senate Watergate Committee about the agency's role in covert domestic operations. He is now under fire for the CIA's role in opposing the Salvador Allende government in Chile, overthrown by a military coup last September.

Outgoing Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright said the question of recalling Kissinger would be decided in "a week to 10 days." If called, the secretary would be questioned about the accuracy of testimony during his 1973 confirmation hearings, which minimized the U.S. role in Chile.

After his testimony a few months ago, following his threat to resign, the committee cleared Kissinger of allegations he lied during the confirmation hearings about his role in Watergate-era wiretapping.

President Ford acknowledged Monday the CIA intervened in Chilean politics between 1970 and 1973 in opposition to the Third Born Of Quads Dies

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The third born of the Riordan quadruplets lost his eight-day battle to live Tuesday, but the condition of his brother and two sisters was improved today.

A hospital statement issued Tuesday said Charles Terrance Riordan died at Tampa General Hospital of prematurity and intracranial hemorrhaging.

The four infants were born 10 weeks prematurely to Terrance Riordan of Altamonte Springs on Sept. 9. Mrs. Riordan was released from the hospital Friday.

The hospital statement said "Patrick is still serious, but improved, and Anne and Lois are in satisfactory condition."

Lois, the first born, weighed 2 pounds, 8 ounces, and Patrick was second at 2 pounds, 7 ounces. Charles Terrance was next at 2 pounds, 11-1/2 ounces, followed by the smallest, Anne, at 2 pounds even.

The children were born over a 58 minute period. Mrs. Riordan had been taking fertility drugs.

Terrorists Land In Damascus

By United Press International

A French airliner with four Japanese terrorists aboard landed today at Damascus airport, Beirut airport authorities reported. Israeli security forces had gone on alert at the Tel Aviv airport when the jet entered Middle East air space for the second time toward an unknown destination.

Aboard the plane were three members of the Japanese Red Army who had seized the French Embassy in The Hague and held it for five days, and another Japanese terrorist freed from a French prison in exchange for nine hostages, one of them the French Ambassador to Holland.

Two Dutch pilots and a British flight engineer, all volunteers, were flying the French Boeing 707.

The plane flew from The Hague Tuesday night and refueled this morning in Aden, the capital of Marxist South Yemen. It took off again this morning, and Beirut airport authorities reported it back over Syrian territory before the landing.

Beirut officials blocked airport runways to prevent it from landing there.

Israeli security forces, including soldiers and border policemen, went on alert at Ben-Gurion International Airport outside Tel Aviv when radio signals indicated the plane was approaching neighboring Syria.

The Israeli precautions were prompted in part by memory of a "Red Army" operation at the airport in May, 1972, when three Japanese killed 28 persons and wounded 79 others in the main arrivals terminal. The sole surviving attacker, Kozo Okamoto, is serving a life sentence in a maximum security Israeli prison.

The plane's final destination remained a mystery. The terrorists were refused permission to debark in South Yemen and were thought to be en route either to Tanzania or the Sudan, both of which have expressed sympathy for Arab terrorists in the past.

Beirut authorities said the plane asked for permission to land there on the flight from Aden but was refused. "All runways at the Beirut airport were blocked to prevent the plane from landing," the officials said.
